LEGAL.

TRUSTEE'S SALE.—Whereas, Francis Watkins and Jane M., his wife, by their deed of trust, dated October 26, 1876, and recorded in book 561, page 80, in the office of the Recorder of Deeds for formerly the county (now city) of St. Louis, Missouri, conveyed to the undersigned trustee the following described real estate in the city of St. Louis, State of Missouri, as follows, to-wit: Lots numbered ten (10), eleven (11) and twelve (12) of the subdivision of the south of half block No. seventy-seven (77), in Eiler's survey of the former city of Carondelet, now city block No. three thousand and one (3,00) of said City of St. Louis; said lots No. 10, 11 and 12 containing an aggregate front of seventy-five (75) feet on the west line of Third street, and running westwardly of equal width parallel with and along the north line of Pine street one hundred and forty (140) feet more or less in depth to an alley; bounded north by lot 9, east by Third street, south by Pine street and west by an alley; in trust to secure the payment of a certain promissory note in said deed of trust described; and whereas said notes is now past due and unpaid, now, therefore, at the request of the legal holder of said note and under the provisions of said deed of trust, I, the undersigned trustee, will offer said property for sale at public vendue, to the highest bidder, for cash, at the east front door of the Court-House, in said city of St. Louis, Missouri, between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m. and 4 o'clock p. m. of

THURSDAY, THE 12TH DAY OF MAY, 1881,

for the purpose sof said trust.

JOHN A. SCUDDER,
Trustee.

St. Louis, Mo., April 7, 1881. 170

WHEREAS, John O'Fallon by his deed dated on the fourth of February, 1870, recorded in the office of the Recorder of Deeds of Jefferson county, Missouri, in book 3 of deed of trust, page 142, and following, conveyed to Isaac J. Pollard and Robert Aull, of the city of St. Louis, Missouri, among other property, certain real estate situate in the county of Jefferson, State of Missouri, to-wit: The west half of the northeast quarter of section 24, township 42, range 5 east; also the southeast quarter of the northeast quarter of section 24, township 42, range 5 east; also the fractional section 26, township 42, range 5 east; which conveyance was made in trust to secure the payment of certain promissory notes in said deed fully described; and whereas part of said notes remain unpaid; and whereas said Isaac J. Pollard and Robert Aull have both departed this life, and the undersigned, Gustav E. Meissner of Jefferson county, Missouri, was, on the 23d day of March, 1881, appointed by the Circuit Court of Jefferson county, Missouri, as trustee to execute said trust in place of said deceased trustees: Now therefore in pursuance of the terms of said deed and at the request of the holder of said notes, the undersigned will proceed to sell the real estate above described, on between the hours of 10 o'clock in the forenoon and five o'clock in the afternoon of said day, at the east front door of the Court-house, in the City of St. Louis, State of Missouri, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash in hand, to be paid to the undersigned as soon as the bid is accepted.

FRIDAY, THE TWENTY-NINTH DAY OF APRIL, 1881,

ORDER OF PUBLICATION.

State of Missouri, City of St. Louis, ss.
In the Circuit Court, City of St. Louis,
February Term, 1881.
Wednesday, March 30, 1881.

Annie Loeben
vs.
Adolph Wolff Loeben.

It appearing from the petition herein verified by affidavit that the defendant is not a resident of the State of Missouri, on motion of plaintiff by attorney,

It is ordered by the Court that said defendant be notified that a civil action has been commenced against him, the object and general nature of which is to obtain a decree of divorce from the bonds of matrimony existing between her and said plaintiff on the ground that defendant, wholly disregarding his duties as the husband of plaintiff, has absented himself without reasonable cause for the space of one year and more, having abandoned plaintiff and the children of said parties and wholly abandoned them on November 21, 1878, and has failed to provide for them to contribute to their support since that date, and for a decree giving plaintiff the care and custody of the infant children of said parties, and restoring her maiden name of Annie Weltring.

And unless he appear at the term of this court to be begun and held at the city of St. Louis, on the first Monday of June next, and on or before the third day thereof, answer the plaintiff's petition, the same will be taken against him as confessed.

And it is further ordered that a copy hereof be published according to law in the St. Louis POST-DISPATCH, a newspaper printed and published in the city of St. Louis.

A true copy from the record.

Witness my hand and seal of the Circuit Court City of St. Louis, this 4th day of April, 1881.

The leading Scientists of to-day agree that most diseases are caused by disordered Kidneys or Liver. If, therefore, the Kidneys and Liver are kept in perfect order, perfect health will be the result. This truth has only been known a short time and for years people suffered great agony without being able to find relief. The discovery of Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure marks a new era in the treatment of these troubles. Made from a simple tropical leaf of rare value, it contains just the elements necessary to nourish and invigorate both of these great organs, and safely restore and keep them in order. It is a POSITIVE Remedy for all the diseases that cause pains in the lower part of the body—for Torpid Liver—Headaches—Jaundice—Dizziness—Gravel—Fever, Ague—Malarial Fever, and all difficulties of the Kidneys, Liver and Urinary Organs.

It is an excellent and safe remedy for females during Pregnancy. It will control menstruation and is invaluable for Leucorrhœa or Falling of the Womb.

As a Blood Purifier it is unequaled, for it cures the organ that makes the blood.

READ THE RECORD.

"It saved my life."—E. B. Lakely, Selma, Ala.

"It is the remedy that will cure the many diseases peculiar to women."—Mothers' Magazine.

"It has passed severe tests and won endorsements from some of the highest medical talent in the country."—New York World.

"No remedy heretofore discovered can be held for one moment in comparison with it."

—Rev. C. A. Harvey, D. D., Washington, D. C.

This remedy, which has done such wonders, is put up in the LARGEST SIZED BOTTLE of any medicine upon the market, and is sold by Druggist and all dealers at $1.25 per bottle. For Diabetes, enquire for WARNER'S SAFE DIABETES CURE. It is a POSITIVE remedy.

Beaconsfield Passes a Very Dangerous Night.

Subscriptions Raised for the Greek Sufferers by the Earthquake.

Difficulty With the Druses in Lebanon—Affairs Critical in Greece—Cablegrams.

England.

LONDON, April 7.—Beaconsfield had a very serious attack of spasms during the night, owing to a chill, but rallied towards morning. The physicians state, however, he is very ill, and they are in constant attendance.

LATER.

A later bulletin announces a great change for the better in Beaconsfield's condition. There is now no fear of a fatal termination to the severe attack of the night.

THE GREEK SUFFERERS.

LONDON, April 7.—The Greek patriarch at Constantinople telegraphs the Greek Commission in Liverpool as follows: "The news from Chio is threatening. The catastrophe surpasses all belief. I implore you to form committees to receive subscriptions in aid of the sufferers. The need is urgent." The Lord Mayor of London opened a subscription for the relief of the sufferers. Nearly £10,000 has been raised.

THE LAND BILL.

LONDON, April 7,—The Times says the land bill since it was first discussed by the Cabinet has passed through twenty-two variations of form. It will include schemes for the reclamation of waste lands and for immigration.

BAIL REFUSED.

LONDON, April 7.—Most, of the Freihiet, was committed for trial on a charge of having in the columns of his paper incited the people of a foreign State to sedition and rebellion, and bail was refused.

DISMISSED.

LONDON, April 7.—The Court of Appeals dismissed the appeal of the Rev. Alexander Mackonochie against his sentence of deprivation for ritualistic practices.

Cuba.

WASHINGTON, April 7.—Com. Meade, of the United States steamer Vandalia, in a letter to the Navy Department, dated March 30, says that Havana is healthy, but lawlessness prevails, and goes on unrestrained. Murders and robberies are of daily and nightly occurrence, and recently the British Consul was nearly murdered by ruffians.

Russia.

ST. PETERSBURG, April 7.—The nomination of Gen. Ignatiff and Baron Nicolia to portfolis, and the expected appointment of Gen. Tchernaieff as Governor of Orenburg, are sufficient indications of the strong Slavonic and reactionary tendency of the Government at least in home affairs.

Greece.

VIENNA, April 7.—The difficulty at Athens is to find a Minister who can induce the country to accept the proposed settlement. The position of the King and cabinet is critical.

Syria.

CONSTANTINOPLE, April 7.—A cordon of 10,000 Turkish troops has been drawn around the Pauran District, Syria, in consequence of the conflict between the Druses and neighboring Mohammedans.

The Dominion.

ST. PAUL BAY, QUEBEC, April 7.—At midnight a shock of an earthquake was felt here sufficiently strong to awaken the people from sleep.

The Flood at Yankton.

YANKTON, D. T., April 7.—The ice gorge which has been resisting the onward flow of water at this point for twenty-four hours broke an hour ago and the water is falling rapidly. Lower Yankton has been submerged since Monday morning. The lower floors of two hundred dwellings, shops and mills were covered from one to four feet. Much damage has been done to houses, goods and buildings. The steamer Peninah broke from her mooring as the ice began to move and has floated with the current a mile, lodging on the railroad track where she now sets. Intelligence from the submerged farming districts was received last evening. Rescued parties have been found and landed in places of safety. About two hundred persons must have perished with the cold and hunger had they not been reached. The good work still progresses and hopes are entertained that nearly all the ice and water-bound sufferers will be rescued. The weather remains cold, and the situation becomes more serious daily. The fuel supply has been reduced to a minimum and many kinds of provisions are running short. A freshet has swept away thousands of cords of wood and to-day not a single cord is for sale in this market.

Another Centennial.

NEWBURGH, N. Y., April 7.—The Washington Headquarters Commission invite the co-operation of the State and National Government in the Centennial celebration in '83 of the declaration of peace and the disbandonment of the Army of the Revolution at Washington's headquarters.

Indications.

WASHINGTON, April 7.—For Tennessee and Ohio Valley, warmer east to south winds, falling barometer, generally cloudy weather and rain. For Lake region, northerly to easterly winds, preceded in lower lakes by westerly winds, falling barometer and stationary or slight rise in temperature, increasing cloudiness, rain or snow. For Upper Mississippi and Lower Missouri Valleys, rain or snow, falling followed by rising barometer, easterly winds, shifting to west or northwest, and slight rise followed by lower temperature. Cautionary signals continue at Escanaba, Milwaukee, Section 1, Chicago, Grand Haven and Section 3.

CHICAGO CHIPS.

Archiepiscopal Ceremony—Strike of the Street Car Employes.

CHICAGO, April 7.—In the presence of six Bishops, 120 clergy and 5,000 people Archbishop Feehan was formally inducted into his exalted office of Archbishop of this Catholic diocese, the ceremony being the bestowal upon him of the pallium or robe of office brought to this country from the Pope. The ceremony was performed in the Cathedral of the Holy Name, and was very interesting, novel and impressive.

CAR STRIKE.

Not a car is running to-day on the West Side Street Lines, the strike of the conductors and drivers having left the company helpless. At first they made a faint show of running their cars, but the initial car was unceremoniously dumped into a ditch by the passengers as soon as they learned the true state of affairs and the passengers themselves cheerfully resumed their journey down town, about three miles on foot. No other attempt was made to run cars. The employes distinctly state they will attempt no boycotting and their manly stand and the apparent justice of their cause has gained them the good will of the people.

COLORADO CULLINGS.

Fire in the Mines—Railroad Laborers in Demand.

DENVER, COL., April 7.—The Republican's Leadville special says: The fire in Freyer Hill Mines, which was never completely extinguished, but has been smouldering for weeks, broke out anew yesterday between the Little Pittsburg and Carboniferous, and is raging furiously, necessitating the stopping of all work in the immediate vicinity, throwing over a hundred men out of employment. Preparations are being made to rush steam into the drifts and smother the flames.

Much difficulty is experienced in obtaining labor for the railroads being constructed throughout Colorado. The Denver and Rio Grande alone require from $5,000 to $10,000 for the grading of 500 miles of extensions which they have under contract in Colorado and the adjoining territories. They offer work at about $2 per day to able bodied men who apply at either Denver or South Pueblo. New extentions are projected, which on the completion of those now under way will give employment to a large force.

ARMY OF THE TENNESSEE.

St. Louis Chosen as the Place for the Next Reunion.

CINCINNATI, April 7.—The Society of the Army of the Tennessee at business to-day re-elected Gen. Sherman, president, Col. S. M. Dayton, recording secretary, Gen. A. Hickenlooper, corresponding secretary and Gen W. F. Force, treasurer.

St. Louis was chosen as the place of the next meeting, which will be held May 10 and 11, 1882. Col. Williamson, of Iowa, now in the Land Office at Washington, was chosen as orator.

Gen. Sherman read a long paper on military discipline.

There will be a reception at Col. Dayton's this afternoon, and a banquet to-night will close the reunion.

A Murderer's Confession.

CINCINNATI, April 7.—Several days ago the dead body of John Barenberg, a wealthy bachelor farmer near Greenfield, O., was found trampled beneath the feet of a horse in the stable. Yesterday David Ross was arrested on suspicion, and late last night he confessed that he had murdered him and had robbed the house of about one hundred dollars. He had formerly kept house for Barenberg, and claimed that fully $75 was due him and withheld by Barenberg, and that he had gone there for a settlement when Barenberg made a movement to assault him. He then struck deceased on the head with a small club and he fell. Ross has a bad record.

Endorsing the Republican Senators.

HARRISBURG, April 7.—The Republican caucus resolution endorsing the course of the Republicans in the United States Senate passed the Senate by a party vote. Senator Gordon, Democrat, moved to amend by inserting a provision that the resolution should not be construed to endorse the bargain made with Mahone, but it was defeated after considerable debate.

Grain Factory Burned.

CHICAGO, April 7.—The Evening Journal's Peoria special says: Hart & Co.'s Union Grain Drill Factory was burned this morning. Loss $30,000. Insurance $17,000.

Anthracite Coal.

PHILADELPHIA, April 7.—The anthracite interests, with the exception of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad, agreed to a suspension of mining for three days next week.

CUNNING CONKLING.

The New York Senator Anxious to Compromise.

Rumors Anent the Robertson Confirmation—Nominations—Senate Proceedings.

The Conkling Fight.

WASHINGTON, April 7.—The statement contained in numerous dispatches from here that the President may decide to revive an ancient custom and go in person to the Senate to break the dead-lock is all bosh. There is no necessity for the President to resort to any extreme or even ancient measures to break the dead-lock. He is embarrassed by the situation and would like to have the nominations confirmed, but in accordance with his expressed opinion he has hesitated to advise the Senate what it ought to do. He has in short not interfered and naturally has hoped to see his party win. Now that the Democrats appear so determined to stand on the ground that toeir party is not suffering because of the dead lock, it is believed the President will ask his friends in the Senate to go into executive business if the present situation continues much longer. The President has supporters enough in the Senate to execute his wishes when he chooses to express them and say the deadlock must be broken. It is evident that there has been considerable bluster in the talk of making war against the administration because of Robertson's nomintion. Conkling much prefers a compromise to war, and he and all his friends are using all their influence to obtain some little concession from the President so that a retreat may be sounded and called a compromise.

A thorough canvass of the Senate by a reporter of the Western Associated Press shows that Conkling is doomed to defeat, and he knows it. Only two Democratic Senators even talk of voting with him. Maxey, Voorhees and Garland, who have been published as his supporters, deny and denounce the report as false.

On the Republican side Conkling, should he press his opposition to Robertson to avote, would not get exceeding a dozen Senators. Conkling elected to go to Wisconsin with Carpenter's remains, knowing that whatever might occur in the Senate his fight could not open in his absence. He is seeking every means to delay the opening of the battle in the hope that some arrangement may be made by which he can retreat without dishonor.

Rumors.

WASHINGTON, April 7.—Rumors were flying about the Capitol this afternoon more thickly than usual, one being that a secret committee of Republican Senators had been appointed in Conkling's interest to urge the President to withdraw Robertson and substitute from some other State than New York. While its true that Conkling is trying all sorts of schemes, the President declared himself firm as a rock to stand by Robertson, unless the latter voluntarily withdraws. The talk about appointing David Davis Collector of New York is considered silly trash. He would not have the office and its ceaseless annoyances.

The President nominated the following Postmasters:

Arthur L. Sanborn, Anderson, Iowa; Bohan S. Loomis, Preston, Minn.; John C. Dickey, Waterville, Kas.; Geo. W. Doty, Burlingame, Kan.; Wm. N. Taft, Charleston, S. C.; John Nichols, Raleigh, N. C., vice Holden, withdrawn.

Treasury News.

WASHINGTON, April 7.—The Treasury department announces its purpose to stand by the system of checks introduced in the Life Saving Service system, and to discharge all men who refuse to carry the checks.

GARFIELD'S VISITORS.

The widow of the late Admiral Farragut is in Washington. She is the guest of President and Mrs. Garfield.

Barnum, the showman, called on the President to-day, but says he does not want office.

Senate Adjournment.

WASHINGTON, April 7.—Vice-President Arthur's friends will attempt to adjourn the Senate from this afternoon until Monday, as the Vice-President wants to go to New York, and can not have a substitute, as in case of a crisis being reached his vote is necessary to his party. The Democrats will assist in the adjournment.

XLVII CONGRESS.

Senate.

WASHINGTON, April.—The pending business, a resolution for the election of Senate officers, was taken up, and a motion to go into executive session, made by Senator Pendleton, was voted down—yeas, 29; nays, 30.

Mr. Vance addressed the Senate on the subject of the State debt of North Carolina, denying that the debt had ever been repudiated and asserting that one of the first acts passed by the legislature of that State after the war had been one providing for the payment of its indebtedness. Under the force of the reconstruction acts, for the first time in the history of North Carolina, she had found herself compelled to repudiate any of her obligations. That she had to do at the dictation of the loyal, non-repudialing, honest and virtuous Republican party of the North. It was not a voluntary action of the people of North Carolina.

The Republican side, he said, coming down to the question of election of officers, had inquired why the Democrats would not vote for Riddleberger. That was shifting the issue. The question was, how could the gentlemen on the other side support him. He was a rebel, an unrepentant rebel, a Democrat, an unrepentant Democrat, a readjuster, an unrepentant readjuster. How could they forgive him? What was the object for their supporting him, He (Vance) objected to voting for any man who called himself Democrat who had a surname before the the word "Democrat." He objected to the manner in which the Republican part had undertaken to foist a candidate upon the Senate because it was in defiance of the whole plan of political salvation. Mr. Riddelberger had been taken up in his sins, unrepentant and unshriven, and been translated into the heaven of Republicanism without having tasted of death.

Detroit News.

DETROIT, MICH., April 7.—A machinist named Wm. M. Sproul fell from the fourth floor of Linn's grocery store, this city, this forenoon and was instantly killed. He was repairing a pully at the top of the elevator. Proper precautions against such an accident were not taken. Sproul was a skillful and experienced mechanic. He leaves a wife and four children.

Miss Cross, a daughter of Judge Cross, of Centerville, this State, died at Coldwater, where the family lived, yesterday.

Mrs. Dr. Wilder, of Waukeeshina, this State, notified Miss Cross of the fatal illness. She mistook the announcement for that of her own sister, with whom Miss Cross is stopping, and went into convulsions and died in a few hours.

Arthur Smith, of Scipio, this State, has been arrested for attempting to sell two forged notes of the First National Bank in Hillsdale.

BARTLEY CAMPBELL.

His Comical Experience as Editor of the Dispatch Ten Years Ago.

Mr. Bartley Campbell, who is one of the most successful of the American dramatists of the day, is in the city this week, preparatory to the appearance of his company next week at the Olympic. Having heard that Mr. Campbell was once engaged in journalism in St. Louis, a POST-DISPATCH reporter waited upon him this morning, and found that he had not only had St. Louis newspaper experience of the common kind, but that ten years ago he was one of the editors of the old Dispatch when the concern was on Third street, between Olive and Locust, and was owned by D. Robert Barclay. Mr. Campbell said that he began life at fourteen years of age as a reporter and worked his way up, until at twenty-two he was the owner of a paper. He followed the business in Cincinnati and New Orleans, and was for a time editor of the Southern Monthly. In 1870 he, in company with A. M. Gibson, now Washington correspondent of the New York Sun, had charge of The Paper, a Democratic daily in Philadelphia. It was a journalistic success, but not a pecuniary one. When it stopped publication, Mr. Barclay had just bought the Dispatch, which was then a sickly evening paper, bearing no resemblance to the present POST-DISPATCH. He secured the services of Messrs. Campbell and Gibson to edit his paper.

"My whole connection with the Dispatch was amusing in the extreme," said Mr. Campbell, "and I have often laughed about it and talked it over with Gibson since. You see, Gibson and I believed in aggressive and personal journalism. We wanted to attack everybody, but Mr. Barclay wanted the paper to be a kind of "tea table gossip" or a daily edition of the Waverly Magazine, a paper that should attack no man, and should make him, Barclay, a very popular citizen. I could tell you dozens of ludicrous incidents which occurred from this difference of what constituted a newspaper; but I wouldn't like to do it, for Mr. Barclay is certainly a gentleman, and he lost his money in the enterprise. Gibson and I knew it would be utterly impossible for us to get along with Barclay, and it was a wonder that he stood us so long. We shocked him constantly, and got him into trouble with his friends. Every man in town seemed to be his personal friend, so that every time we pitched into anybody it was a great grievance to Barclay. For instance now, we wrote up the city pawnbrokers. We exposed the enormous profits they made, and their methods of dealing with the unfortunates. We gave them a pretty warm overhauling. Unfortunately they were friends of Mr. Barclay, and they were so mad that they actually attacked him on the street. And so it was continually. I think if we had remained a few months longer, Mr. Barclay would have had to flee the town. He was liberal with us and spent his money freely. He agreed to give us so much a week and $1,000 a year each in stock for ten years, so that we would become permanent. Gibson left a month or two before I did. Barclay said to me one day: 'I think, that Gibson could do better on the New York Sun. Suppose you tell him so.' I did, and Gibson left. When I left also in a few weeks it was undoubtedly a great relief to Barclay. He was too polite to tell me so, but it was evident. The paper then had almost no circulation, and one almost felt that he ought to apologize for issuing such a sheet. I think that Gibson and I could have ultimately make a success of the Dispatch, for I still believe that aggressive journalism is the only variety that the people will support."

"Do you ever do any more newspaper work after leaving St. Louis, Mr. Campbell?"

"No; that was my last. Before leaving Philadelphia I had written a play that proved very successful, and I consequently believed that my forte lay with the stage. Gibson, you know, is still in Washington. He it was who made the Credit Mobilier expose."

Mr. Campbell is uniting a new play now, and rehearsing another one for production next week.

Salting the Stockholders.

The Circuit Court was engaged to-day with the hearing of motions for execution against stockholders of the Butchers & Drovers' Bank, and likewise against the bank. The following judgments were rendered: R. W. Richardson vs. James C. Berry, stockholder, execution awarded for $457 27 and costs; Joseph Marks vs. Joseph Mulhall, stockholder; execution awarded for $2,750 and costs. R. D. Kohn vs. Butchers and Drovers' Bank, judgment for plaintiff for $6,220 93. H. C. Hopper vs. same; judgment for $182. Fredrick Heman vs. Robt. A. Barnes, stockholder; execution awarded for $453 59.

Reindicted.

A few months ago a lottery vendor named Rothschild was fined $500 by Judge Jecko on the evidence of a young man who was employed by the special officers to prosecute. The case was appealed to the Court of Criminal Correction, where it came up and fell through on account of the absence of the young man for the prosecution. The Grand Jury has reindicted Rothschild, and are examining into the absence of the witness.

Died from a Dose of Poison.

Edward Culleton, seventeen years of age, who attempted suicide last night at 1123 Foster street by taking a dose of Paris green, expired shortly after nine o'clock this morning at the above number and street. Dr. Garlock attended the boy and entertained hopes of his recovery, but the poison had effectually done its work. The coroner will hold an inquest this evening. The parents of the deceased boy were interviewed, but could give no cause for the rash act.

IN THE BLUE SKY.

Do you remember, my sweet, absent son,
How in the soft June days forever done
You loved the heavens so warm and clear and high;
And when I lifted you, soft came your cry—
"Put me 'way up, 'way up, 'way up in blue sky?"

I laughed and said I could not; set you down,
Your gray eyes wonder filled beneath that crown
Of bright hair gladdening me as you raced by.
Another Father now, more strong than I,
Has borne you voiceless to your dear blue sky.

JOE EMMET'S AUDIENCE.

How He Played an Entire Matinee for the Benefit of One Man.

From an Interview in New York Sun.

"Did you ever find any difficulty in capturing an audience?" we asked.

"Very rarely," Fritz answered. "Once I was filling an engagement at a London theatre. A gentleman in buttoned kids and hair parted in the middle occupied a private box. He coolly surveyed me through his eyeglass. I was feeling pretty good and was acting with more than usual freedom. The audience roared with laughter, but not a muscle of his face moved. He stared at me like a Gorgon. I was nettled, and I determined to capture him. I did my best, but there he sat partially turned toward me in the easiest of positions with the coldest of faces. You could fairly read on his features: 'Well, upon my soul, I expected something pretty bad, you know, but this is perfectly execrable.' I lost my guard and made no secret of my effort to capture him. The audience dropped on it, and became deeply interested. I warbled 'Wilhelmina Strauss,' and filled it to the brim with grotesqueness, but the fellow sat there like a stone statue entirely unmoved. Apparently nothing would fetch him. And so the performance progressed, the audience watching the man in the box more than it did me. At last I made an impression. It was in the act where I pranced around the stage with a little child astraddle my shoulders. A faint smile overspread the man's face. He raised his gloved hands and languidly clapped them twice. The audience screamed with delight, and from that time until the close of the performance I had every soul in the house with me. The naivete of the child, combined with the acting, had been too much for him, and had brought him down.'

In describing these scenes Mr. Emmet unconsciously assumed the character of Fritz, and danced around the broker's office as gracefully as though he was in costume. He was asked to how large an audience he had ever performed. "Well, I don't know," he replied. "There were nearly 1,500 persons in the Grand Opera House last evening. Of course, as it was a first night, some of it was paper. But my share of the receipts was more than $800—that is, sixty per cent. of the gross receipts at the box office. I think I played to over 2,000 people in London once. The smallest audience I ever had was in Columbus, Ohio. The managers had been trying to introduce matinees, but with not much success. Joe Jefferson, Denman Thompson, and some of the big stars had gone through the mill, and the audiences had been so small that they had shied, and refused to take the gate. The money had been returned at the box office, and the disappointed ticket buyers had departed determined never again to patronize a matinee in Columbus. The afternoon business was at its lowest ebb when I struck the town. After two or three performances the posters announced a matinee. I went to the theater at 2 o'clock that afternoon and found my company skylarking behind the curtain, in their every-day suits. I looked out in the auditorium. There was just one man in the theater. He sat clear back in the parquet. It was as much as I could do to outline him in the darkness. I went out to the box office. 'Did that man pay for his ticket?' 'Yes, fifty cents,' the treasurer replied. 'The manager told me to return him his money and close the theater.' 'No, you won't,' I said, 'I have never disappointed an audience when I'm sober, and I don't propose to do so now. We'll play for him.' I went into the parquet, introduced myself to the man, and thanked him for his attendance. I told him that as he thought enough of me to come and see me and pay fifty cents for the privilege, he should have as good a performance as though the house was packed. I then went behind the curtain and requested the company to dress. 'Great Cæsar, Joe,' one of them said, 'you ain't a going to play to that one man, are you?' 'Yes, I am,' I replied. 'He's paid his money, and he shall have his money's worth.' 'Oh, the devil,' broke in another member of the company, 'I'll pay his fifty cents and you let him go.' I told them that the performance must go on as usual, and I warned each one that any attempt to guy the audience or any failure to play a part in full would be the signal for a discharge.

"Well, the orchestra played an overture and the curtain arose." Fritz continued. "I walked down to the footlights. I invited the audience to come forward and take a front seat, where he could see and be seen. He thanked me and settled himself in the front row. I suggested that a little generous applause thrown in where he thought the actors deserved it, would serve to inspirit them and warm them to their work. He seemed to appreciate the situation, and agreed to give us all the encouragement that he thought we deserved. The performance began. I don't think I ever played better. I threw myself heart and soul into the character, and sang the 'Lullaby' so tenderly that the entire audience was in tears. He called for an encore. I told him that we rarely gave an encore, but as this was an extraordinary occasion he should have one. He applauded liberally at times where no applause was deserved, and again failed to applaud where applause was deserved. At such times I called his attention to the omission, and asked whether on reflection he did not really think that he had made a mistake. A hint was sufficient. He would clap his hands as though perfectly enchanted and shout, 'Bravo!' like an Italian over Salvini. The company paid no attention to him, but went on with the performance as regular as clock work. Between the acts, however, one or two of them evinced a disposition to go out into the auditorium and mingle with the audience. I set my face against it and they refrained. At the close of the second act the manager entered the theatre. He had been out for a walk. He seemed dumbfounded at seeing the house brilliantly lighted, and the orchestra playing soberly to one man.

But he was the more astonished when the curtain arose and the performance was resumed with as much unconcern as though there were a thousand dollars in the house. But he had an eye to business. He sent word to the newspaper reporters and a half a dozen of them arrived in time for the last act. No actor ever received better newspaper criticisms. Some of them were over a column long. It turned out that the audience was the owner of a copper mine in Michigan and very wealthy. On the following night he gave the whole party a banquet at the leading hotel. He entertained us as handsomely as we had entertained him, and we parted with mutual regrets. Just a year afterward I announced another matinee at Columbus. It was well advertised, and the house was packed to suffocation. I took in over $1,200. My sense of duty to that one man, who had invested the small sum of half a dollar, had returned me a golden harvest."

Capture of Russakoff, the Regicide.

From the London News.

A very interesting account is given by an army surgeon-assistant, who states that he was one of the first to seize Russakoff, and accompanied him to the Prefecture. The writer, Wassili Gorokhoff, narrates that he was proceeding along the Katerinofsky Canal toward the Nevsky Prospect when he overtook a man of middle height and long light hair, dressed in a thin overcoat and a tall fur cap. The man was carrying a small, white parcel. The Emperor's carriage appeared on the canal road, and having saluted the Emperor, who, Gorokhoff says, returned his salutation, he heard a violent explosion which impelled him forward, and looking round he saw a Cossack fall from his horse and another staggering. The man whom he had previously observed then ran toward the Nevsky Prospect without any parcel in his hand, and he seized him, a policeman and two soldiers immediately laying hold of the man. The Emperor approached them, asked if he was the criminal, ordered him to be searched, and turned, proceeding toward his carriage. Gorokhoff appears to have a dim recollection of having seen a man of short stature go quickly toward the Emperor, and then something was thrown either by this man or from between the railings of the canal, which fell at the Emperor's feet with a deafening explosion. The Emperor, and all standing around, including the man he had noticed, fell to the ground as if mowed down. Gorokhoff saw the Emperor lying on his right side, and an officer with white epaulettes—this was the Police Colonel Dvorjilsky—drag himself toward his Majesty, who slightly raised his head which then sank again on the snow. Whilst the young man who had been seized running away was being held after this second explosion, a soldier came up and struck him on the head, saying, "You miscreant, what have you done?" Russakoff replied, "For God's sake don't strike me. You will know afterward. You are ignorant people." He was then placed in a sledge and taken to the Prefecture, where he was undressed and examined. He was respectably clad, and had a purse containing three rouble notes, a passport and other papers. When interrogated in another room Russakoff first gave a fictitious name, but soon acknowledged his real name. Amongst other things he stated that he had met his friends the week previously, who had explained to him that on the Sunday following he would have to shoot at the Emperor. Russakoff also affirmed that he knew others would be appointed to carry out the same deed, but did not know who they were. About 1 p. m. he had proceeded to the Canal Road, but, being too early, walked across the bridge to the small market-place adjacent. There Russakoff says he met a young woman, seventeen years of age, good-looking and well dressed, who knew him, and whom he knew by sight, not by name. She handed him a parcel, telling him he was to throw it and it would explode violently. After remaining a short time in the market-place he returned to the Canal Road. What followed is only too well known.

Jay Gould on Oranges and Alligators.

From an interview in the World.

"For 300 miles south from Jacksonville, along the St. John's River, and still further north and east the country is dotted over with orange groves of from twenty to twenty-five acres in extent. It takes about five years for an orange grove to mature so as to produce fruit for the market, but nevertheless new groves are constantly planted, and are looked to as a sure source of revenue. When an orange grove begins to bear fruit it apparently never wears out. I heard of one tree which bears annually from six to eight thousand oranges, but this is above the average."

"What is the cost of an orange grove?"

"As I said," replied Mr. Gould, they vary in extent from twenty to twenty-five acres, and are worth from $50,000 to $100,000. But they yield a handsome percentage. For instance, Mr. Hart, who lives just above me here, owns a grove of about twenty-five acres, and he informs me that it yields him a net income of from $15,000 to $20,000.

"Is this interest growing?"

"Decidedly so, and I think that within the next five years Florida ought to be able to supply the entire demand of the United States for oranges. I believe that the sweet orange is not a native of Florida, but has to be grafted upon the tree which bears the sour orange. On one tree you some times see oranges, lemons and limes growing together. Of course the several fruits have been grafted; but it is interesting and peculiar to a Northerner to see these fruits growing in a happy family on one tree. It suggests a horticultural paradise."

"Is orange growing the chief industry of Florida?"

"By no means. Not to speak of cotton and live oak and the like you must not forget the alligator." said Mr. Gould, smiling and evidently thinking of his alleged "alligator farm."

"But is the alligator a sufficiently valauble animal to make his cultivation remunerative?"

"No; his hide is the valuable portion of him, and even that is worth comparatively little, though I believe they make it into boots in England."

"But does Florida cultivate these reptiles?"

"That is not necessary. The alligator cultivates himself and produces quickly and numerously. The whole swamp and river country is filled with them."

"And are they dangerous?"

Well," said Mr. Gould, "it is as well not to get in the way of their tails. I think they strike their victims chiefly with their tails. Nevertheless, the eleven-inch jaws of some of them are not attractive. My son killed one which resembled a whale on four legs. Our party killed over thirty of them. Whether I killed any or not myself is a difficult question for me to answer. I saw some live ones just before I fired and some dead ones just afterward; but as several rifles went off at the same time, I can not assume that it was my gun that killed an alligator. But alligator shooting was not what interested me in the South; the blossoms, or wedding blossoms of the North, you know, were on the trees, and yet the ripe, golden fruit was there, too."

The System of Tithing in Utah.

Cor., New York Times.

I suppose the majority of the readers of the Times are posted on the system of tithes among the Mormons. It requires that every saint (and a nice-looking lot some of them are for saints) shall contribute one-tenth of his annual profits, or, as they call it, "increase," to the church. If a farmer raises ten bushels of potatoes, one bushel goes to the church; if a stock-breeder's calf crop is ten, one cow goes to the church. I suppose if it was only one calf, the church would take it out in veal, for it is exacting in the collection of tithing to the last ounce or penny. If a Mormon laborer or miner is earning wages from the hated Gentile, ten per cent of his wages goes to the church; and, to use the language of my respected, but unfortunately deceased friend, Wm. Shakspeare, thereby hangs an anecdote. Some Mormons are pretty smart, and contact with the worldly Gentile teaches them a trick or two. The story is that a Mormon car-cleaner was called upon for the tithing of his wages.

"How will it be if I don't respond?" asked the embryo apostate.

"You will be cursed," was the reply.

"Cursed! You just drop around here early some morning and hear the boss car-cleaner talk to me, and then if you think cursing has any effect on me maybe I'll pay my tithing."

There is not much doubt that that particular saint has been cut off from the church and declared a Philistine or a son of Belial.

A very large proportion of the Mormons are of the lowest and most ignorant class of Scandinavians. They know only two things—work and obedience to the church. Where these are unemployed there is no tithing in them, but their labor, being cheap, is in demand, and the church contracts them out as Chinamen are contracted out by the Chinese six companies, and the tithe collector is on hand each pay-day to collect the regular 10 per cent of their wages. As I have stated, certain of the railroads were started by the church, and afterward came under the control of Jay Gould, but from circumstances I am inclined to believe that the church still retains an interest in them. On all these roads a large proportion of the employes are Mormons; engineers, conductors, brakemen, agents, etc., are Mormons, and pay their regular tithing to the church. I am told that on one of these roads there is a Gentile conductor, who only retains his position by virtue of paying tithing. The tithing system is a nice thing—for the church.

High Toned Bonnets.

From the New York Mail.

"Tete-a Tete," of the Boston Transcript, is writhing in great pain because six New York bridesmaids are to wear at a coming wedding Dunstable straw bonnets, which will cost $60 a piece, when finished. But why shouldn't they wear the Dunstable if they want to, and have high crowns and wide brims to them also, and trim them with four long feathers beside? Dear "Tete-a-Tete," take a little peppermint or ginger tea.

GOUNOD'S NEW OPERA.

First Performance of "Le Tribut de Zamora" in Paris—Plot of the Opera.

Paris Special to N. Y. Herald.

After delays and disappointments innumerable Charles Gounod's new four act opera, "Le Tribut de Zamora," was produced at the Grand Opera this evening before a house packed from floor to ceiling with literary, artistic and fashionable celebrities. It may be stated at once that it was very favorably received. Since it was originally composed, two years ago, the work has been frequently revised and altered. Four distinct editions have been engraved by M. Choudens, the publisher, since 1878. In its primitive form "Le Tribut de Zamora" would have taken seven hours to perform. By repeated and ruthless cuts the work was at least reduced to reasonable proportions. Excisions were made up to the very eve of the production and several numbers were sacrificed at the first and only dress rehearsal of the opera, which took place in the strictest privacy on Tuesday night. When produced this evening the opera was entirely fresh to Paris, and the reception given it must be taken to express the honest and unbiased opinion of a first night's audience. MM. d'Ennery and Bresil's libretto, though not strikingly novel, is dramatic and well suited to operatic treatment. It may be remembered that M. d'Ennery offered it in the first instance to Signor Verdi, by whom it was declined. It was then offered to M. Gounod and accepted.

The plot is laid at some undefined period of the Moorish occupation of Spain, and the action is transferred, as occasion requires, from Zamora to Cordova. There is no overture to the opera. After a short and insignificant orchestral introduction the curtain rises on a bright and sunny scene in the Spanish town. On the right is a palace; on the left is the modest house of Xaima, acted by Mlle. Daram, the soprano. Xaime is a pretty Spanish girl, betrothed to a poor Christian adorer, called Manuel, represented by M. Sellier, the tenor. The marriage is about to be celebrated. There is a rather insipid chorus of townspeople, and presently Manguel appears, singing a pretty serenade under his mistress' balcony. Xaima replies and all seems smiling when a flourish of trumpets is heard, announcing the arrival of the fierce and redoubtable Moorish chief, Ben Said, played by M. Lasselle, the baritone. Agreeably to custom Ben Said has come in the name of the Caliph to exact a periodic tribute of virgins. Lots are drawn and Xaima, despite the musical despair of her lover, is carried off to be sold as a slave and the curtain falls on a commonplace finale. The war song performed in this act was redemanded with enthusiasm.

Act 2 transports us to a place outside the ramparts of Cordova and allows the introduction of a glittering and picturesque cortege. There is a liberal allowance of trumpets and other brass instruments. As in "Aida," the brass band on the stage responds to the orchestra before the footlights. Xaima and her companions are put up for auction. There is a furious competition between Manuel and Ben Said. The latter has taken an amorous fancy to Xaima and finally becomes her master. The act ends with a very effective finale. The third act is the longest and, perhaps, the most interesting in the opera. The scene is a gorgeous interior in the harem in Ben Said's palace. A ballet is introduced. The music is piquant and charming, partly in warlike, partly in a softer and more pastoral key. The instrumentation is ingenious and the melody occasionally graceful in the extreme. The fete is rudely interrupted by a duel between Ben Said and his rival, Manuel. The latter is vanquished and is only spared, thanks to the passionate intervention of Xaima, who vows she will kill herself if Manuel is slain. The interest is well sustained.

In the fourth act an important part is played by a mad woman named Hermosa, represented by Mlle. Krauss. Hermosa had already appeared in the proceeding act. Her husband is Xaima's father. He had been killed in the battle by Ben Said. The scene is a garden of Ben Said's palace. Hermosa, in a moment of lucid recollection, recognizes her daughter Xaima and determines to avenge her wrongs. There is a very beautiful dramatic duo for mother and daughter, introducing the motive of the war song so highly applauded in the first act. In the denouement Hermosa stabs Ben Said, Xaima is restored to her lover's arms and the avenging mother is allowed to escape unharmed, thanks to the mental infirmity which makes her sacred. The costumes and scenery are singular picturesque, but there were evidences of insufficient rehearsal in the choruses. Mlle. Krauss won a triumph in her great scene with Xaima. She was twice encored. There were loud calls for M. Gounod at the end of the performance. The composer conducted his opera in person.

A Young American in Paris Decides to Do as the Parisians Do.

Paris Correspondence N. Y. World.

A young American named Perrin has just committed suicide in Paris under very distressing circumstances. He came here at the time of the exhibition in 1878 and found some employment in the exhibition. He was not very fortunate, but he met with a good friend in an Englishman, who took a great liking to him and went with him to London and introduced him to some very good society there, Perrin, it should be said, was handsome, well educated and of good manners. Among the people he saw in England was a young lady with whom he soon fell in love. She was a mere flirt, but she allowed him to think that she returned his affection and he came back to Paris in the firm belief that his engagement was secure, though he does not appear to have had very brilliant prospects. He picked up an irregular kind of living and at one time did (as many dozens of youths have done before him while in temporary difficulties) stood as a model for the artists. This, it must be confessed, was not a very happy omen for a union with ultra British respectability. Whether the lady found it out or not I cannot tell, but it is certain that she soon gave him to understand that she really cared very little about him. A day or two after that his English friend in Paris received a letter from Perrin saying that by the time the letter was opened the writer would be dead. The friend hurried round to his lodging and there found him lying on his bed in full evening dress with his arm gashed in four places and stone dead. He had taken every precaution, even to putting a basin by the bedside to catch the blood. The friend completed the ghastly tragedy by dipping a handkerchief in the blood and sending it to the lady who, in his opinion, was the cause of the deed. The American Legation is at present engaged in active researches for the family of the unfortunate boy.

In Bed for Seventeen Years.

From the Jamestown (N. Y.) Journal.

Avery Wixon, of the town of Hammondsport, Steuben county, died on Wednesday of last week, at the age of eighty-one years. Having no apparent physical ailment, but being as well as the majority of men of his age are, for seventeen years of the last twenty of his life he has lain in bed. He took his three meals regularly, eating heartily of whatever had been prepared for the rest of the family. Most of the time named he had slept. About thirteen years ago he got up from the bed he had occupied for ten years and performed three years of hard labor, eating and sleeping as other people. He then went back to his bed and has never done a day's work since nor sat up longer than to eat his meals. A short time ago he was taken with paralysis and has taken no nourishment of any kind except a small amount of water in which crackers had been soaked. At death his form was reduced to a mere skeleton.

Feeling of the Market.

From the Carson City Appeal.

"Guess I won't take in the school to-day," said a Carson urchin with an Appeal in his hand.

"Why not?"

"Concordia has fallen off ten cents, and I don't dare to show up until it picks up again."

"What have the fluctuations of Concordia got to do with your studies?"

"A good deal," answered the boy. "My teacher has a hundred shares of the stock, and when it falls off a few cents we all catch it heavy. I keep my eye on the list, and when there's a break you bet I don't go to school. I play sick. Golly! how she basted me the time Mount Diablo busted down to two dollars. When it was selling at twenty she was as good as pie. I was the first feller that got on to the break, and I told the boys of my class that if she didn't sell there'd be the devil to pay. I heard Uncle Fraser say it was a good short, and I never slept a wink for a week. I grabbed the Appeal the first thing every morning, and when I saw her keel down to sixteen I skipped to the hills. Lord, how she did bang Johnny Dobson around that morning. I was in hopes that the blasted mine would pick up, but the water got in the lower levels, and I knew we were in for it. She licked somebody for every dollar it dropped. After it struck $8 it picked up a little, and we had time to get well. My mother's been patching my pants now ever since the big break in Sierra Nevada, and if the market don't take a turn pretty soon I'm goin' to quit the public schools and go to work on a ranch."

A Silly Law.

From the New York Tribune.

That singular piece of legislation recently enacted in Wisconsin in the interest of temperance and order and commonly known as the Anti-Treating law received vastly more attention after it had passed both houses and gone to the Governor for his signature than while it was pending. The Legislature apparently woke up to a realizing sense that its action had been a trifle "previous" and would have been glad of a chance for further deliberation. But the Governor reasoned that the proposed law was not technically unconstitutional, that it would not disturb the peace and prosperity of the State, and that it was not rushed through either branch of the Legislature without full opportunity for debate. He accordingly signed the bill, but not until the last hour of the three days allowed for his approval or veto. Now that the measure has become a law there seems to be a general disposition in the State to ridicule it, and no one, apparently, imagines that a great victory has been gained in the cause of temperance. The fact is that a law more easily violated with impunity was probably never passed since the world began. To drive a coach and four through it would be no feat at all. A full-rigged ship would probably go through without touching, and it is absolutely certain a schooner of beer would. The Milwaukee Sentinel says: The Anti-Treating bill has become a law which will not amount to a row of pins. There may be come arrests made "for the fun of it," but that will be about all. The utter siiliness of the whole business is apparent. * * * If the Wisconsin Legislature has had a desire to advertise itself, that desire is gratified. This remarkable production will be heard of everywhere.

Did it Pay.

From the Detroit Free Press.

A Griswold street lawyer was looking out of his window yesterday when he recognized a familiar figure and made hurried preparations to vacate his room, leaving on the desk a card bearing the legend:

"Gone over to Circuit Court—be back in two hours."

He was scarcely out of sight when the individual seen from the window entered the room, read the card, and at once planted himself in a chair with the look of a man who meant to sit right there for twice two hours if necessary. But it wasn't necessary. He left the room in about half an hour, and the owner hurried back to find a note reading:

"DEAR SIR: I came up this morning to borrow $5 of you to help me out on my board. You were not in, but one of your clients has called and left $10. I have receipted for the money in your name, and will consider it as a loan until I see you again. Ta-ta."

The lawyer wasn't over ten seconds realizing that he could have saved $5 by staying there and lending as much, and he wasn't of any good the rest of the day.

In the Lion's Den.

New York Letter to Philadelphia Times.

A funny thing happened here the other night in connection with the show business. An actor named Frayne had bought a lion, warranted ferocious and bloodthirsty. Part of the play was that Frayne was to go into the lion's den. This was to be done by substitution, the keeper being dressed so as to similate the actor. The Windsor Theater was crowded and all went well until the time came for the lion's keeper to enter the cage with the furious beast. The unpleasant fact then came to light that the keeper had gone out to "wet his whistle" in order to keep his courage up and that he had imbibed so much that he was now helplessly drunk. Frayne came before the curtain and explained the situation, and assured his patrons that from that time he never would have anything to do with blood-thirsty lions. If any Philadelphia people are wanting a nice lion that one is for sale.

The Late Czar's Mistress.

From a St. Petersburg Letter.

It appears that the Princess Dolgorouki has been sent as a scapegoat into the wilderness. It is the belief in high Russian society here and at the Court of St. Petersburg that this unfortunate lady is to be blamed for all the errors of Alexander II.'s latter years. The breath was scarcely out of his body when soldiers were ordered to bundle her into a carriage and take her to the railway, whence she was to start by express for Italy by way of Vienna. She was in a swoon when this bundling-out process was performed, and the opportunity was not allowed her to say farewell to her little children, who remain behind. Superstitious Russians attach importance to the fact that the unfortunate Alexander's finger bearing the ring put on at his nuptials with the Princess Dolgorouki, was cut off by a bomb splinter.

Peculiar Fingers.

From the Elmira (N. Y.) Free Press.

There is a well-to-do farmer living in Orange county, near Warwick, who has a peculiar trouble every winter with his hands. As soon as the first cold wind comes in autumn his fingers and thumbs up to the union with the hand appear nearly as white as snow, while the hands and wrists, by contrast, are a deep blood red. In winter his fingers feel like icicles; in fact, so little does the blood circulate in them that there is but little feeling in them. Curiously enough, while his fingers are almost bloodless, his feet are always glowing with warmth, so much so that he seldom wears stockings. And one cold day the past winter, when he froze one ear and a portion of his face, and while his fingers were as rigid as marble, his feet, covered only with his boots, were glowing with heat.

JUTE CULTURE.

A Great Industry to Which Farmers in the South are Giving Attention.

New Orleans Correspondence New York Sun.

In 1873, the amount paid for jute imported into the United States was $4,500,000: in 1880, for the year ending June 30, it was $7,000,000; and this year it will, in all probability, reach the round sum of $10,000,000. Jute is an annual plant of the order tiliaceæ, and of the genus corchorus capsularis. Its stem is from one-half inch to one inch in diameter, grows to the height of ten or twelve feet, is very straight, and branches only at the top. It has sharply serrated, lanceolated leaves, about six inches long and nearly two inches wide. The flowers have five sepals and five petals. The stamens are numerous, but they have only one pistil. The bark is fibrous like that of hemp or flax, and it is the fibre that is used. It is more soft and silky than either flax or hemp, and is very fine—that is, capable of minute subdivision—and its being so fine and of such great length causes it to be sometimes woven with silk in cheap fabrics. The seed is sown in March or April, and it may be cut in June, July and August. It is best to cut it when it begins to blossom, as the fibre is then better than when the plant is older. After being cut the stems are steeped in water until the fibre separates easily from the stems. It is then prepared for the loom in a manner similar to that in which flax is prepared, only the stems are not dried and broken, as are the flax stems. In Egypt and Syria the corchorus olitorius is cultivated as a pot herb. The American linden or basswood, sometimes called "linn wood," is the most familiar representative of the order to which jute belong, and the renowned honey of Lithuania is made from linden blossoms, and the highly prized Western honey comes from apiaries which are located near the great basswood forests in the West.

Jute is used to make coarse cloth, mattings, cheap carpets, burlaps, coarse bagging, gunny, rice bags, coffee sacks, and like articles. It is not good for ropes, as it cannot stand the weather; yet our hemp ropes are frequently adulterated with jute. When the waterfall for the head was in fashion, many were the switches which were made of jute, instead of flax, as was often said.

Gunny is the name of the coarse cloth used to bale cotton. The yield of this year's cotton is set down at 6,000,000 to 6,250,000 bales. Each bale takes about seven yards of gunny, hence 6,000,000 bales of cotton alone require 42,000,000 yards of cloth made from the fibre of the jute plant. This is one item, and the largest, but to it we must add the bagging for the increasing rice crop, and for wheat and coffee and pepper until the whole catalogue is filled.

There is now no question but that we could supply this demand ourselves and prosper by the production of jute. It is a settled fact that many of the Southern States have splendid jute-growing lands. California, realizing the benefit of its culture, has been bagging her own products from her own soil for several years, and it is said that a jute manufactory will soon be started in this city. The jute plant is considered a sure crop in this State. It is no harder to raise than corn, and the time of harvesting comes just about the time when the cotton planter could cleverly put his farm force to the cutting of jute, and thus few extra hands would be needed. To cultivate it is light labor, the rank growth causing it to overshadow everything else in the field, and the yield is, to say the least, wonderful. The ends of the stems are used for making paper, as are the old sacks and bags. The stems may be used for garden fences and coarse baskets, and, like the willow of Delaware and Maryland, they make good charcoal for gunpowder. These are some extra uses to which the waste is put, as the fibre is the important part of the plant.

Legislative Blackmailers.

Albany (N. Y.) Special to Chicago Times.

The opening hour of the State Assembly session to-day was marked by a very interesting episode. Mr. Raines, of Ontario, arose to a question of privilege, and proceeded to make a remarkable statement, which he fortified with affidavits. He said that some time ago one Le Fever, who formerly published a Republican paper in Albany, and who has been for several years a newspaper correspondent at the capital, came to him with a bid in reference to the Adirondack survey. He represented to Raines that the State was paying too much for the survey, and that the bill which he represented was calculated to save money to the public treasury. Mr. Raines was not familiar enough with the subject to judge for himself as to the nature of the bill, and when Le Fever said that he wished to be heard before the committee in its favor Mr. Raines introduced it, marking on the back of the bill, "By request." Affidavits were read, showing that Le Fever called upon Verplanck Colvin, Superintendent of the Adirondack Survey, calling his attention to the bill, and offering to kill it for a consideration. Mr. Colvin reported the offer to Mr. Raines, and a still-hunt was got up by the latter. He discovered that Le Fever was a member of a gang of lobbyists whose members had entered into a conspiracy to extort money from Colvin. It is said that it has been discovered that an ex-member of the Assembly was chief of the crowd, and that another reporter, named Owens, was also connected with the conspiracy. After Mr. Raines had concluded his speech a motion for the appointment of a committee to investigate was adopted. Owens, who was sitting at a desk in the chamber, was arrested immediately after the adoption of the resolution, on a criminal warrant issued by the Albany Police Justice. Le Fever was taken into custody outside.

A Protest Against Vennor.

From the Detroit Free Press.

The success of the foreigner Vennor in furnishing Canadian weather to the United States is now explained. The standing quarrel between Gen. Sherman and "Old Probabilities" has been prolonged with Gen. Hazen. The head of the Signal Service claims the right to control the detailing of officers of the army for duty in his bureau. Gen. Myer succeeded in making these selections, but Gen. Sherman has persuaded Secretary Lincoln to give him the nominating of them. Of course, if Hazen can not select his officers, we are liable to have such weather as Sherman's selections may give us. As a result, either the bureau has already largely overdrawn the weather supplies and during the the second month of spring is giving us the weather laid by for next December, or it is so inefficient as to allow Vennor to smuggle in his Hudson's Bay stock and spread it all over the country before Hazen and his raw recruits have so much as started in the morning. There should be either a change in the bureau, or a tariff on Canadian weather that would reduce Vennor and his private manufactory to the condition of a wretched foreign pauper. It is a disgrace to the Government of the United States if a single outside barbarian, with a few hundred dollars' capital, can beat 50,000,000 intelligent freemen out of their own American weather. If nothing else can be done, let a subsidy be voted to weather of United States manufacture and the productions of native industry thereby encouraged.

Separating a New Family.

From the Omaha Herald.

A Union Pacific express train was delayed at Sidney, Neb., the other day by a broken wheel. Among the passengers were a young woman and a young man bound for the Pacific coast on their wedding trip. The bridegroom, Goodwin by name, got out to kick up his heels and look around, and while he was absorbing the beauties of nature and other things in Sidney the express passed on without him. There was consternation at Sidney and on board the Pullman. The bride was in a state bordering on distraction because of her lost liege, and vainly though frantically did the groom put in his best locomotion to catch the retreating train. As he and the bride were one, with a very clear case of "a passenger on board who was left behind," it was fun to everybody else except the two most deeply interested, Failing to catch the train on foot, he clambered into the cab of a locomotive which happened to be puffing about the place and earnestly solicited help. The engineer, a tender-hearted man with a tender, saw how it was and proceeded to obtain proper authority as quickly as possible and started with Mr. Godwin on a stern chase after the flying train that was trying to make up an hour of lost time, and which was proud of a new pair of wheels. Away the extra locomotive sped on the wings of love and sympathy and steam. Godwin petted the engineer and fireman and helped to shovel coal, and at Antelope, thirty-seven miles away, the wild-eyed, pursuing husband overtook the heartless cars that had run away with his brand new wife.

Boycott in New York.

New York Special to Cin. Commercial.

Charles C. Boycott, who was driven from his home in November last by the Land Leaguers at Loughmask, Ulster county, Ireland, arrived here to-day by the Italy. He registered as Charles Cunningham, omitting his sirname in order to avoid identification. He was accompanied by his wife, his brother, Rev. Edmond Boycott, his nephew, A. St. John Boycott, and a friend, A. Weeks. His companions were registered as Mrs. Cunningham, A. Edmund and A. St. John. They succeeded in concealing their identity on the steamer, but they were recognized as soon as they landed. Capt. Boycott is about forty-nine years old, and five feet eight inches in height. He is slightly bald, and his hair and whiskers are almost gray. His features are large and prominent, and his countenance is attractive and pleasant. Capt. Boycoot said to a Tribune reportor that the object of his visit to this country was simply to see some friends whom he had not met in years. His plans were not arranged, and he could not say whether or not he would settle here. His future would depend altogether on the condition of the Irish agitation. He thought that the future of Ireland was very uncertain, and said that his country would be in a prosperous condition with a determined ministry. If the Government showed signs of weakness and vacillation then there was little hope that protection would be accorded to life and property, or of the development of industries by English capital. He asserted that the Irish people had been spoiled by being humored. They declared that they were determined to get rid of the landlords and had no idea what they would do with the land. He believed that the Land League would ruin and disgrace the people, but would be a great success for the leaders. He hoped to be able to return to his home again. He and his family left home in an ambulance very early in the morning, and two of his servants were left in charge of his house. The people ordered the servants to leave the place, but they were brave women and refused to go. An Orangeman who assisted the family in its troubles was left at the house as bailiff. Capt. Boycott said that he intended to go west for two weeks and then retnrn to this city.

Guttenberg's Old Bible.

From a New York Letter.

Among the curiosities of next week's great book sale is the famous original copy of the Bible as printed by Guttenberg in 1450-53. The book is valued at $10,000, and is from the library of the late George Brinley, of Hartford. The only other copy of the Guttenberg Bible in this country is in the Lenox Library, and is not for sale. There are only a few copies in existence anywhere. One of these is in the British Museum, two are in Paris and three are owned by noblemen in England. Here is a chance for anybody wanting a really nice Bible, with no modern revision about it nor any other innovations. It is sad to think that the library of good old Dr. Chapin must come under the auctioneer's hammer and be scattered. Dr. Chapin was in love with his books. He collected between four thousand and five thousand volumes, among which are many rare and choice books. He regarded these books as friends of his. Few men knew the contents of their books more thoroughly. He was not only an extensive reader, but a very thorough one. There was nothing pedantic about him, nor shallow, nor pompous. The books on which he lavished so much real affection would properly form an addition to the library of some wealthy man and ought to be purchased as one collection. But no wealthy man bids for the lot, and they will have to be knocked down piece-meal to any who will bid for them. The sale will begin on Easter Monday.

Louisiana's Ablest Man.

Johnny Bouquet's New Orleans Letter.

I asked Marshal Wharton whom he considered to have been the ablest man produced in Louisiana.

"John Randolph Grymes," he replied. "He was the most brilliant man New Orleans ever had, though erratic. He received a fee of $100,000 from the city of New Orleans to represent her in a suit with the General Government. He never knew what became of the money, it went so fast. When asked to proceed to Washington to finish the matter, he demanded $40,000 more for about two weeks' work; and he got it. His life was full of brilliant episodes, accompanied with recklessness. He shot the Speaker of the Legislature for speaking against his wife. An imputation had been made against the lady's character, and Grymes said he didn't consider the truth of that at all; and if it were true he didn't hold the man in the case responsible; but Grymes said: When the offender talked about it, 'then it became my business.'

"He married the widow of a wealthy and eminent man, who lived apart from him most of the time, residing on Staten Island, New York. He paid her a visit every year, and they were friendly, but it was impossible for a woman to live with Grymes. He was a relative of John Randolph, and had some of the qualities of that morbid but brilliant man."

A Plucky and Lucky Correspondent.

From the Spectator.

The Standard has been fortunate in its agents in South Africa. Its correspondent with General Colley performed a really splendid feat—he joined in the advance of the troops, saw and shared in their defeat, was not killed, and telegraphed at once a long column of description to his paper. That man must come up to Jule Verne's ideal of a correspondent. He had the nerve to join, unarmed, in a desperate expedition, the eyes to see all that was going on, and the cleverness not to be killed on the spot, because it would impair his usefulness. He was trodden down, taken prisoner, and immediately interviewed Mr. Joubert with great effect. If he is, as we suppose, the man with whom Sir F. Roberts quarrelled in Afghanistan, let us hope he will be forgiven by the General, in consideration of his pluck, readiness and resource; and let us hope also that the next time he goes under fire he may have to record a victory. General Roberts must not silence correspondents in a colonial war.

Lady Horseback Riders.

Labouchere in London Truth.

To elbow is bad enough, but when the left arm is raised nearly parallel to the shoulder it looks, to say the least of it, odd, especially when the rider's eyes are fixed to the left with a look as much as to say, "Now what do you think of my style of riding?" In my humble opinion ladies cannot ride (or for the matter of that do anything in public) too quietly. The arms should fall naturally from the shoulder, with the elbow well in at the waist, hands low and light and shoulders well squared. This gives a perfect seat. I know that women inclined to embonpoint as a rule cannot sit as straight and square as thin women; all the more reason for them to try and do so, and above all to keep their elbows well in. To effect an attitude on horseback is a very great mistake.

CONDENSED TELEGRAMS.

Anna Dickinson has sulked on her engagement to play Claude Melnotte in Philadelphia.

The Republicans elected the entire city ticket and all aldermen but one at Kansas City.

The Chicago street-car drivers and conductors, west division, are on strike for increase of twenty per cent.

Mr. Gowen intends to resign as President of the Reading Railroad and sensational developments are promised.

The steamer United States went ashore near Cape Roman, South Carolina, Wednesday. All hands saved.

Mrs. Magdalene Mills, an aged lady of New York, died on Wednesday of voluntary inanition. For three weeks she existed on water.

John Hover, of Sunbury, Pa., a lad of fourteen, shot and killed his sister at the dinner table because he was refused a second plate.

John H. Glenn, a prominent jeweler of Fort Wayne, Indiana, has mysteriously disappeared, with the greater portion of his stock.

The State election in Rhode Island on Wednesday resulted in a victory for the Republicans. A. H. Littlefield was elected Governor.

A. J. Henson, a young farmer of Amherst county, Va., was knifed to death on Wednesday by J. J. Stennet, an old man who had beaten him in a suit.

Alby C. Thompson, an old and worthy mill owner of Norwich, Conn., the father of a grown family, died in a house of ill-fame from blows received in a drunken carousal.

Deits, mate; David Hill, first engineer; W. C. Bleakney second engineer; Jno. M. Ward, carpenter; H. C. Lee, store keeper and steward.

A PITTSBURG telegram of the 5th says: The Wyoming arrived at noon, from St. Louis, and the John L. Rhoads left for the same point this evening with all the freight she wanted. The Bachelor is due to-night. The Hudson leaves for Cincinnati to-morrow in place of the Graham, and the Wyoming takes her departure for St. Louis on Friday. The Emma Graham left Beaver Shoals last night for Cincinnati, and when the Wyoming met her she was getting along all right. The raising of the Graham was superintended by Capt. John A. Wood, the coal man, and she was afloat in two hours and thirty minutes after he took charge. The work of repairing the break in Dam No. 1 has been commenced, and will be pushed forward as rapidly as possible. Capt. H. K. Haslett, who has been spending the winter with his mother, now in her sixty-sixth year, at Liverpool, O., has gone to Washington, D. C.

Local Brevities.

At a joint meeting of the School Board committees on teachers, lands and leasing last night, it was decided to build an addition to the Chouteau Avenue School.

The Graphic Club held its regular semi-monthly meeting last night, Mr. F. Bradley acting as host. The subject for illustration was Longfellow's "Tales of a Wayside Inn." Sketches were sent in by Cassily, Adams, E. J. Biddle, Matt Hastings and others.

The Teachers' Committee of the School Board met last night. The resignations of and Annie H. Marsh, of the Carr Lane School, Maria Carrier, of the Laclede Baanch were accepted. It was decided to send another teacher to the Lowell district, and to transfer Jennie F. Showater from the Everett School to Elleardsville. A resolution was adopted opposing the opening of the new kindergartens for the present.

The Republican Central Committee, accompanied by a number of prominent citizens, serneaded Wm. L. Ewing last night at his residence on Miami street and California avenue, South St. Louis. The citizens of the ward also joined in the demonsiration. Chauncey I. Filley made the opening speech, congratulating the Mayor elect upon his success. Jno. A. Cowan followed, and Mr. Ewing made a suitable reply. Refreshments were then spread and all present spent a couple of hours in social converse.

The monthly gathering of the Sketch Club last night was largely attended. Mr. A. B. Thompson acted as host, and a large number of active and honorary members were in attendance. Tennyson's "Aylmer's Field" was the subject, and more than twenty-five sketches had been sent in. The most attractive were those by Paul Harney, Russell Riley, Will Schuyler, John S. Frye, J. R. Meeker, Charles Holloway, W. L. Marple and Tracy. After the sketches had been examined, speeches were made by Hon. Thomas Allen, Geo. Bain, Albert Todd and others, and the meeting adjourned into social session.

AMUSEMENTS.

OLYMPIC.

"Louis XI." was repeated last evening at the Olympic to a large and fashionable audience. The title-role sustained by Mr. Wm. E. Sheridan is the strongest dramatic feature of the season, and the entire performance furnishes an interesting illustration of the French Court in the fifteenth century. This evening the "Marble Heart" or the "Sculptor's Dream," will be presented with Mr. Sheridan in the dual role of Phidias and Raphael; John W. Norton as Volage, editor of the Lantern, and Mrs. Emma Stockman-Norton as Marie. This is an exceptional cast, and the house will be crowded. On Friday "Louis XI." will be repeated for the last time. Saturday "Richard III." is announced. Next week "My Geraldine" will be the attraction at the Olympic. Mr. Bartley Campbell, the author, has arrived in town to supervise the preliminary arrangements.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE.

Mrs. McKee Rankin was indisposed yesterday and her role of Billy Piper in the Danites at the Opera House was sustained at the matinee and evening performances by Miss Isabel Waldron. The popular American drama is attracting large audiences and the support of the Rankins may be considered good. On Saturday night the curtain falls for the last time in the old house and the occasion will be marked by elegant satin programmes. "The Danites" will then be performed for the 1,070th time.

POPE'S.

Excellent houses are the rule at Pope's this week, and the enjoyments of Salsbury's Troubadours in the merry musical picnic oddity, "The Brook," proves eminently successful. A shower of real water adds much to the stage effect. Nellie McHenry's songs and dances are encored every evening. Next week "Mazeppa" is to be produced at Pope's.

THE SCOTT RECITAL.

Mr. and Mrs. John R. Scott will appear at the Library Hall this evening in dramatic and humorous readings, recitations, etc. They will be supported likewise in Sydney Rosenfield's petit comedy, "Off the Stage," by Miss Julia Tyler, Miss Bella Scharff, Mr. J. E. Dunbar and Mr. L. M. Carpenter. The programme includes in the first part the following gems: "The Vagabonds," Prof. Scott; "The Fall of Pemberton Mills," Mrs. Scott; "Col. Jack and Col. Jim," Prof. Scott; "Miss Wormwood on Women's Rights," Mrs. Scott; "Curfew Shall Not Ring To-night," Miss Lena Tarrants; "The Last Hymn," Miss Maggie Woods.

The Cinderella Music Festival.

The three hundred children who will appear during Easter week at Mercantile Library Hall in the extravaganza of Cinderella are daily rehearsing the play under the direction of Mrs. Agnes Benton. The three different casts rehearse at once, and are already well up in the parts. The performances promise to go very smoothly, and the music which is the very best and latest will fit in as nice as if it had been written specially for the occasion. The toilets of the little misses are very elaborate and some will cost considerable money. The boys also will be gorgeously costumed, and the marches, tableaux, dances and choruses will be rich in spectacular effects. Cinderella flags are now flying everywhere over the streets, and reserved seats are selling very rapidly. An excursion party of 100 persons will come from Belleville, Ill., to attend one of the performances.

The POST-DISPATCH has much the largest BONA FIDE circulation ever attained by any afternoon paper in St. Louis; it has a larger city circulation than any morning paper in St. Louis (except one); its receipts for circulation by carriers are ten times as large, and it sells twenty times as many papers on the streets, by news-boys, as all other afternoon publications combined.

THE rain to-day reveals again the horrible character of the streets of St. Louis. Will the new municipal admistration choke the Gorgon of the macadam paving ring?

OUR dispatches announce an improvement in the condition of Lord BEACONSFIELD. At the critical moment he is able to realize on his vigorous constitution and his life of abstemiousness.

ALL the upper rivers are swelling, and the probabilities are that the people down on the levee will have to climb on the high seats in a day or two. An old-time flood is on the programme.

THAT was a most delightful "header" that the Republican crew took yesterday, but the attempt to "bob up serenely" this morning is really ghastly. The divers seem to have brought up large quantities of sulphurous, black mud.

WE are willing to admit that there has been a shade too much of local politics in this neighborhood of late. We shall welcome the voice of the man who has a few remarks to make about the World's Fair in St. Louis in 1884, or thereabouts.

THE City Hall gang is reading the details of the earthquake in the island of Chio with great interest. Those who survived the catastrophe of Tuesday are anxious to note the condition of a male human being after an entire block of buildings tumbles down on him.

NOW MR. BLAINE'S health is breaking. He is suffering from rheumatism and sleeplessness. GARFIELD is still wasting away and CONKLING is languishing. There is nothing healthful about this Administration save the brindle dog that stood by the President on the day of the inauguration.

SENATOR MAHONE, of Virginia, received a floral anchor yesterday from a lot of Virginia negroes who admire him as a repudiationist. There is no man in the country who stands so much in need of an anchor. A millstone attached to his neck would be far better, though, than a handful of posies.

IF MR. CHARLES FRANCIS is really in earnest about reorganizing the St. Louis Democracy, he can count on our valuable assistance, but he must consent to the elimination of Cabbage-wardism from our politics. We would prefer to see Mr. FRANCIS vacate the Health Office, too, before he undertakes anything violent in the way of reformation.

THE editor of the Dallas, Texas, Pioneer writes us: "We recognize your paper as one of the ablest in the South and admire its outspoken tone." We are not as far South as we might be, to judge from the winter that we have just passed through, but we can get a hundred thousand affidavits to prove that the POST-DISPATCH is outspoken, so to speak.

ONE of the morning papers publishes an article to-day from the Durango Record, giving an account of the finding of a lot of human skulls in New Mexico, three feet in length. We have no means at hand of ascertaining with scientific accuracy, but we will wager considerable money that there are so-called Democratic leaders in this city who have skulls three feet thick.

CRIPPLED with age and steeped to the lips in poverty, the widow of Old JOHN BROWN has gone to Washington to seek a Government position. It was the blood of the Martyr BROWN that furnished seed to the Republican party, and Mr. GARFIELD, who is thoroughly sentimental and saturated with TENNYSON'S poetry, could touch a chord in the heart of his party if he would make the Widow BROWN honorary housekeeper at the White House.

MR. R. B. HAYES appeared at Cincinnati yesterday and participated in the festivities gotten up by the Society of the Army of the Tennessee. By taking particular pains to attend "free-blows" of this character, MR. HAYES will keep his name free to some extent from the dust of oblivion, but if he only knew how anxious the American people are to forget him entirely he would stay at home and look after his non-partisan pigs and chickens.

NOTHING shows so well the power of the human mind to rally in the presence of disaster as the fact that the KNAPPS were able to get out an edition of their decaying newspaper this morning. As the appalling magnitude of their fatal blunder settled down upon them last evening they must have felt very much like setting fire to their office and retreating by the lurid light of the flames into the sullen morasses of Illinois. But, like the exasperating old circus clown with the belly-ache and a lot of stale jokes, here they are again.

THERE must be some mistake about it. The G.-D. says it did it; the P.-D. says it did it, and the Typographical Union No. 8 says it did it.—Debilitated Republican.

OH, no. You did it. The caucuses in your little back-room are entitled to all the credit.

"SWEET are the uses of adversity," But there may be too much of even a sweet thing. Thirteen thousand Radical majority is just a little more than was needed to chasten the "grand old Democratic party" of St. Louis.—Debilitated Republican.

Yes, the boys rubbed it in on you with rather too much severity. "But the reasons were not alone Electrical and Biological. They were Tangible and Apparent as well."

AN analysis of the voting done in this city on Tuesday last shows that the ticket made by the ringsters received only about 25 per cent. of the Democratic strength—or one vote in four. We observe that Col. DAVE ARMSTRONG attributes a loss of 10,000 votes to the telegram sent by Gov. CRITTENDEN to the KNAPPS indorsing OVERSTOLZ as one altogether lovely. We can't agree with the Colonel. That dispatch did Mr. CRITTENDEN considerable injury, but the OVERSTOLZ ticket was as dead as a smelt long before he shied his castor into the ring.

THE contractors, the street railroads, the asylums, the Work House, the police, the gas rings, with all their vices and devices, were for OVERSTOLZ, as we are assured. The result shows that all these elements can influence but a beggarly number of votes.—Debilitated Republican.

It is important to know the full strength of the combined municipal rings. Working under favorable auspices they are able to poll 11,353 for an alleged Democratic ticket which hadn't the slighest claim in the world on the party. This will be valuable as a basis for future calculations, but it should be understood that the ringsters are not dangerous when the public has been properly alarmed.

CAPT. BOYCOTT, the offensive English landlord, who received such rough treatment at the hands of his tenants in Ireland last fall, has arrived in this country with his wife on a business tour. He has gone to Richmond, Virginia, and expects to make a flying trip West before returning home. While in New York the proprietor of the hotel which gave him shelter was threatened with violence by the Land Leaguers, and it is barely possible that before the Captain sets his foot on English soil again he will have a touch of Irish enmity fostered under free institutions. He will hardly be able to escape with anything less than a pair of black eyes if he comes to St. Louis.

A LOT of political beats, who have been hanging like loathsome parasites upon the body of the Democratic party of St. Louis for years, are going about now swearing oaths more horrible than the one administered to the youthful HANNIBAL by the implacable HAMILCAR that they will never again vote the Democratic ticket. They hope to be withered in every bone and articulation of their alcoholic systems if they ever again serve the cause of Democracy. This is one of the best results of last Tuesday's election. The old eye-sores havn't intelligence enough to perceive that the verdict was rendered against them especially. The voters expressly informed the old members of the Ring that they were not wanted. They should refrain from doing themselves violence and cultivate a profound sense of their own obnoxiousness. There is no favor that they can render the party in the future like that of abstention, and it is to be earnestly hoped that we have seen the last of their convict faces in Democratic Conventions and caucuses.

UNDER the radiant caption of "Victory Sure in St. Louis," the able editor of the Sedalia Democrat, on Monday last, had this to say:

The information from St. Louis renders it about absolutely certain that the Democratic ticket will be elected by from 5,000 to 10,000 majority. This is surprising news because the POST-DISPATCH has bolted and led off a hundred or two Democrats who will be heartily ashamed of themselves after the election. But this defection is being made up ten to one from the Germans and from the colored voters.

That this news was a little bit surprising even the Horse Marines will agree. It may please the editor of the Democrat to know that "the hundred or two Democrats" who followed off a yellow wagon in the shape of the POST-DISPATCH have all returned home, and, with a few insignificant exceptions, are enjoying customary health. The trouble with the forensic editor of the Sedalia Democrat is that he absorbs his information from the wrong source during St. Louis political campaigns. He is evidently addicted to the melancholy habit of reading the organ of the KNAPP family.

AN attempt is being made to slip a few fresh oak leaves into the laurel chaplet of CHAUNCEY I. FILLEY anent the late so-called Republican triumph in St. Louis. We are willing to admit that FILLEY is a greater leader than both CONKLING and BLAINE combined, and that if he had lived in Rome on or about the year 46, B. C., he would have made the inflated JULIUS CÆSAR hunt his hole; but it is childishness to attribute the result of last Tuesday's election to his manipulation unless it can be shown that he made the Mercantile Library Hall ticket. The campaign, like the boy's whistle, played itself. The Republicans nominated a liberal cock-fighter for Mayor, whose fitness was questioned by every voter in the city. Nobody said that he was cut out for the place and no argument was advanced in his behalf by his party organ. The Democrats were provided by the KNAPPS and their ring coadjutors with the worst ticket seen in the world since FALSTAFF mustered his rag-tag and bob-tail army at the tap-room near Coventry. The people grabbed up their clubs, rushed out and disposed of the noxious aggregation as they would of a presumptious skunk, and that's all there was of it. Go to, Mr. FILLEY.

THIS is to be a great immigration year. During the month of March nearly twenty thousand new-comers arrived at Castle Garden, New York—about ten thousand more than came into the country in the corresponding month last year. March is a stormy and tempestuous month and is not a favorite with voyagers. During the halycon days of May, June and July, Castle Garden will look like the basis of an invading allied army. It is estimated that during the year at least half a million foreigners will take up their abode in the United States. Out of this number the developing State of Missouri ought to catch a few thousand. The polyglot Immigration Hand-book should be pushed for all it is worth.

AT the reunion of the Army of the Tennessee in Cincinnati yesterday, Gen. W. T. SHERMAN read a lengthy paper on the battle of Shiloh, designed to defend his military reputation which has long suffered in connection with that affair. The General, after attempting to shift responsibility upon GRANT, enters a general denial of the charge that his command was surprised on the morning of the 6th of April, 1862. He says that he never saw a battle in which somebody was not surprised, and he admits that a good many people at Shiloh were treated to something that they were not wholly prepared for, but he is confident that fair notice had been given to be ready for anything. Gen. SHERMAN may talk as much as he pleases, display charts and make extracts from official reports, but he can never rub out the fact that his command at Shiloh was thrust into a battle with a suddenness that gave no time for preparation. Three days before the battle, with one of his brigades, he had met the advance of the Confederate army at Pea Ridge and exchanged shots with it. On Friday before the battle his main picket post, on the Corinth road, was assaulted by a cavalry command and a lieutenant and six men were carried into captivity. Yetin the face of all this warning, an army of nearly forty thousand men was permitted to crawl up, take position in his front and even train its guns on his camp-fires. On Sunday morning, the 6th of April, BUCKLAND'S brigade, lying at Shiloh Church, received JOHNSTON'S attacking column while lying disorganized about its camp. Every regiment of SHERMAN'S division formed under fire on its own color-line, and many of his men were shot in their tents. Not a spadeful of dirt had been thrown up to protect him nor a tree felled to check the advance of the enemy. It was SHERMAN'S place to know that a hostile army of 40,000 men was marching to give him battle, for the distance from Shiloh to Corinth was only eighteen miles, and JOHNSTON'S army was nearly four days marching that distance. Both GRANT and SHERMAN ought to have been court martialed and drummed out of the army for incompetency and neglect, for they were clearly responsible for the terrible disaster at Shiloh nineteen years ago. If they had shown such culpable negligence later on in the war they would certainly have lost their commands.

PERSONAL.

—Vennor predicts considerable frost, snow and wind for April, but winds up by saying the month will be like May. This is an artful prophecy and can't miss.

—The estate of the late Senator Matt H. Carpenter is valued at from $130,000 to $150,000. Judge Black has been engaged by his widow to conduct his affairs in probate.

—Mrs. Garfield is the first President's wife who has been able to converse with foreign diplomats in the court language of Europe. She speaks French and German fluently.

—Sanator Mitchell, of Pennsylvania, is mentioned as "the statue of a Roman gladiator Americanized." Abundant locks and eyes of twinkling hazel complete the list of his attractions.

—The Baroness Burdett-Coutts has not had typhus fever, as was at first supposed by Sir William Gull; her illness is said to have arisen from the mental strain to which she has been exposed for several years.

—Senator Miller, of California, has a full, bold forehead, crowned with dark hair. One eye he lost in battle, and the same wound scarred his cheek, but spectacles, skilfully worn, nearly conceal the wound.

—Queen Victoria is about to purchase the famous historical estate of Stoke Park. She went through the mansion the other day with her daughter Beatrice and was greatly pleased with it. The price set is $1,250,000.

—The fact was elicited at the Labouchere-Lawson trial in London that the London Telegraph's circulation was 220,000, that its advertising columns produce $2,500 and its sales $3,000 daily, and that its paper mills, besides what they save the proprietors, bring in $50,000 profit yearly.

—Lord Beaconsfield, says the London World, never dissipates or impairs his energies in superfluous solicitude. As he holds enthusiasm to be a hot distemper of the blood, so he considers regret to be a profitless consumption of power. He is the master of an art of which Mr. Gladstone knows nothing—the economy of force.

—Count Herbert Bismarck, the eldest son of the Prince, who eloped with the Princess de Carolath Benther, declares he will only return on condition his father assents to his marriage with his companion. The Princess is older than the Count, and has a daughter fourteen years of age. She was lady of honor to the Empress, and one of the greatest beauties of the German Imperial Court. Her husband has instituted proceedings for divorce.

Mr. Henley is Moved to Rejoice.

ST. LOUIS, April 6, 1881.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

May the great God who rules over the destinies of our city (in the absence of Uncle George) have mercy on the barnacles whom your scalpel has removed from our good old Democratic Ship of State. "What will the poor things do now?" You are entitled to the thanks of all honest Democrats for your work in ridding the City Hall and our party of an army of blood suckers and vampires. There is but one thing more to be done, and that is to give the sexton half a dollar to see that Overstolz's grave is kept green, and then we will all sing that good old hymn: "No more! No more! I'll never do so any more."

Respectfully,
THOMAS J. HENLEY.

The Cost of Gas.

ST. LOUIS, April 7.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Will you please publish the following, from the Scientific American, so that your readers can see the profits made by gas companies who charge $2 50 per 1,000 cubic feet of gas, which costs them 62 cents: T. G. C.

"Mention has been made in this paper of the evidence given by Mr. Kennedy, in the Philatielphia Gas Trust inquiry, touching the manufacture of coal gas. More recently he has been on the stand again, and, in answer to the question: What should be the cost of gas in the holder? has given the following statement of cost of 1,000 cubic feet of gas of sixteen candle power, the price of coal being $4 30 per 2,000 pounds:

Coal	$0.44.9
Labor	.15.8
Lime	.01.2
Renewal of retort settings	.02.2
Disposition of debris	.00.6
Water supply	.00.3
Consumption of gas in works	.00.3
Supplies	.00.7
Repairs	.01.5
Contingencies, expenses and improvements	.06.2
	$0.73.7
Sale of coke at $2 50 for thirty-six bushels to be deducted	.11.7
Net cost	$0.62.0

Mr. Kennedy explained that he calculated to make five feet of gas to the pound of coal, by adding 10 per cent of cannel coal at $10 per ton, and he credited the coal with 30 cents for the residual products, 20 cents for tar, and 10 cents for ammoniacal liquor.

Mr. Francis Vindicated.

ST. LOUIS, April 7, 1881.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

The conversation between your reporter and myself, as published in your paper recently was, as such street conversations usually are, not correctly given. I would not take any particular notice of it if the name of Mr. Francis had not been introduced. Mr. Francis' name was not mentioned by me. There was no occasion for it. He, as far as I know, never had anything to do with the tripartite contract. In justice to Mr. Francis and myself, please publish this in your paper. HENRY KAYSER.

As to Sunday Laws.

ST. LOUIS, April 7, 1881.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Please inform me through your valuable paper whether there is a Sunday law regarding the closing of all public places of amusement and saloons in St. Louis, and oblige

A SOLID EWING MAN.

There is a general State law providing for the observance of the Sabbath, but no special city ordinances regulating amusements and saloons which do not apply on week days as well as Sundays.—[ED. POST-DISP.

An Example.

From the New York Sun.

After threatening for many months to resign, Mr. Andrew D. White has made the plunge. His example may possibly stimulate others now shivering on the brink; and thus they will spare themselves the mortification of being superseded without the privilege of resigning, as Index Noyes was.

Rising to Object.

From the Cincinnati Commercial.

It is cheering to be told that Senator Conkling does not seek any controversy with the Administration. We are assured that if he can have everything his way he would be perfectly at peace with the President. It may not be out of order to remark that that is not our opinion.

Destroying Themselves.

From the New York Tribune.

This long wrangle in the Senate increases the public satisfaction with the President's decision to have no extra session of the House. The Senators are not meddling with the business of the country, but chiefly with their own reputations.

Conkling on the Wane.

From the Chicago Times.

The bulk of the Republican newspaper sentiment in New York anent the Robertson nomination is with the President and against Conkling."

The Brenner Landscape Sale.

Sixteen of Carl Brenner's superb landscapes were sold at the first auction last evening at Thonssen's new art gallery, 608 Olive street. The remaining portion of this splendid collection will be offered this evening. The gathering was fairly representative and some of the prices realized above the average, and a few below. These paintings are the product of careful study, showing the artistic attention to detail for which the artist has won such fame. A notable canvas, "The Brook," was knocked down to Mr. D. F. Colville for $175. The smaller paintings, beech studies, etc., brought fair prices, but the competition was not as active as the merit of the works demanded. The sale will be resumed this evening when some of the canvasses passed last evening will be again placed on the easel. The following notes were taken of last night's sale:

"Summer-Fern Creek," sold to T. H. Rockwood for $110.

"Blue-Lick Creek," 4½x6, sold to J. D. Lucas for $17 50.

"Autumn," 18x38, sold to J. P. Roberts for $90.

"In the Cumberland Mountain," 18x36, sold for $100.

These prices do not include the frames.

After the Assets.

The creditors of Jerome A. Allen, of Franklin avenue, the dry goods merchant, are quarrelling over the assets. A petition has been filed in the Circuit Court by Folwell Bros. & Co. against Kramer, Loth & Co. The plaintiffs complain of a mortgage, executed in favor of J. K. Bell by Jerome A. Allen, which they allege to be a proceeding for the purpose of hindering and delaying the attachment-creditors of Allen. They pray the Court to issue an order annulling the said mortgage and appointing a receiver to take charge of the stock covered by the mortgage with the view of determining the rights of all parties in interest under the several suits filed by the creditors.

ABOUT TOWN.

THOMAS SLATER was arrested to-day on a charge of assault and battery.

JUDGE CADY to-day committed James McNamara to jail for two months on a charge of petit larceny.

THIS morning a nolle pros was entered in the case of Timothy Vaughn in the First District Police Court.

THE tiling of the Planters House' new mammoth rotunda is nearly completed. It is a handsome piece of work.

THE Fire Department to-day issued a permit for the alteration of the Grand Opera House, on Market street. The work will cost $40,000 and is to be finished in five months.

SAMUEL KELLY and Thomas Gleeson were found in some buildings on Sixth street by Officer Finn, and failed to show Judge Jecko why they were at the place. Kelly was fined $25 and Gleason $10.

THE work of cleaning up the new Southern Hotel has commenced in the upper stories. In the lower stories there is considerable painting and graining yet to be done. The carpets have arrived, but none have been laid yet. The office counter and the bar, which are to be of red granite will be done in another week. One of the stores on the Fifth street side is already occupied.

MR. W. C. STEIGERS,

of the POST-DISPATCH, will call on advertisers desiring rates or information relative to advertising.

BELLES OF THE KITCHEN.

Scenes at the Cooking School To-Day.

Miss Corson Concludes the Fourth of Her Series of Lectures.

Notwithstanding the inclemency of the weather the attendance at the Cooking School to-day was large. The lessons seem to grow in interest every day, and large accessions to the class are reported. Among the pupils great interest is evidenced. The ladies are all on hand in the morning, fortified with note books and at least two well sharpened pencils. No speaker was ever reported closer than Miss Corson, and the attention paid is so close that the teacher never has to repeat a single rule or principle. The lady pupils are vieing with each other in regard to the number and correctness of their notes. Some of them have already filled good sized books and are prepared for at least a three-months' siege at cooking in all its branches. Others, notably the older ladies, take fewer notes, because fewer things are new to them, but they stow away every useful receipt with great carefulness. Miss Corson is an agreeable and interesting speaker, and no matter how busy her hands are, she always finds time to intersperse her work with lively remarks and name suggestions which maintain the interest. She has laid aside the gray garb that she wore upon the first day, and now wears a black dress with long sleeves and white cuffs down to the wrists. She uses no apron nor protection, handles all the dishes and the meals, does her own cutting and chopping and attends the stove, but she never seems to get the slightest stain, not even upon her cuffs. Although attending to four or five things at a time, and running from one stove to the other, and from these to the table constantly, she is always calm and unruffled and manages to smile throughout the whole lesson. The ladies are enthusiastic in their praise of her work, and she receives the encomiums without showing any sign of the pleasure they give her.

The bill of fare this morning was home-made bread, to fry croquettes, canton of lamb, vegetable macie, English tea-cakes.

The bread was rolled by Miss Corson in her usual deft way, and was arranged into pretty loaves, which were handed down for the inspection of the class. The croquettes were perfect, and excited unstinted admiration. The ladies passed them from hand to hand, nibbling at them with evident delight. The canton of lamb was the piece de resistance of the morning bill. Miss Corson took a leg of lamb, skilfully separated the skin from the flesh, disconnected the bones, turned the skin inside out and after stuffing it folded it up into the exact semblance of a duck which she held up for inspection. The fact was received almost with cheers, cries of "Oh," "Ah," "How nice," "Splendid" etc., echoed on every side, and when the dish was passed down for inspection the ladies delayed so long in studying it that Miss Corson had to call for it in order to have it baked before the lesson was over. The lamb was then put upon a spit and roasted. The vegetable macedonie and the tea cakes, were also great successes. The afternoon class which was also very large, was thoroughly drilled by Miss Corson on the following programme:

Mock turtle soup, egg-balls, calf's head a la poulette, vegetable salad, cantons de Rouen. It is unfortunate that the weather was so inclement to-day, for all the ladies who were present declared that the bill of fare was the most interesting and Miss Corson's demonstration the most instructive of the week. The programme for the rest of the week is as follows:

Friday morning—Onion soup, roast chicken, French salad, rice, croquettes, vanilla cream sauce.

Afternoon—Fried smelts, Tartar sauce kromeskeej a la Russe, chicken salad, mayonnaise sauce.

Saturday morning—Breakfast, omelette, poached eggs, rechaaffe of mutton, omelette with fine herbs and apple fritters. Afternoon—French breakfast omelette, eggs au veurre, noin chicken soute a la Marengo, sweet omelette, cabinet pudding, jelly sauce.

The lady managers wish it understood that pupils can enter for a single lesson or for the whole course.

The Natatorium Scheme.

The project for a grand natatorium in St. Louis, to be put up early this year and to cost $25,000, has not been abandoned, One-half of the subscription money has been raised, and the rest will be easily obtained. Mr. G. B. Thomson, manager of the Goodyear Rubber Company, is deeply interested in the scheme. He returned yesterday from a visit to Chicago, where he inspected the two fine natatoriums there, which are owned by Dr. Callish. It was intended to have a meeting of the stockholders this morning, but on account of the weather it was postponed. The natatorium will without doubt be built and ready for business by the 1st of June. It will be erected in the vicinity of Twentieth and Pine streets, where is the famous "Camp Spring" which constantly runs a stream of pure water more than sufficient for any natatorium. The plan of the building and the style of its equipment was detailed at length in the POST-DISPATCH during last fall. Many prominent merchants are subscribers to the project.

EAST ST. LOUIS.

JOHN HANSICK, a suspicious looking individual failed to convince 'Squire Graney of his ability to earn an honest livelihood this morning and was assessed $3 and costs.

Two cases of common drunks and one suspicious character were locked up for safe-keeping last night and released this morning for want of prosecution.

Missouri avenue, from Fourth street to near the Relay Depot, is completely covered with water, measuring in some places from six to eight inches. Fifth, Sixth and many other streets not macadamized are rendered impassable on account of the depth of the mud. Many of the dwellings on the lower portions of the island are completely surrounded by water.

The election for school trustee takes place on Saturday. The question as to whether this district will be furnished with a high school or not will be voted upon by the people. The question has been agitated several times by the tax-payers, but has never reached a focus. Two candidates are in the field, but only one is to be elected to fill the vacancy occasioned by the expiration of the term of Lee Tempt.

After two days continual search, Constable Kelly arrested Mrs. Jackson, the colored woman who struck her neighbor with a hatchet, inflicting an ugly and dangerous wound. Mrs. Jackson and her husband are both occupying cells in the station at present, charged with assault with intent to kill. They were arraigned before 'Squire Graney for a preliminary hearing this morning, but the case was postponed till 2 o'clock to-morrow.

Mrs. Slattery appeared before Squire Graney this morning and swore out a warrant against Livingston's bar keeper, charging him with assaulting and kicking her in a brutal manner. Mrs. Slattery's husband was in the saloon yesterday evening when he was attacked by some men. She endeavored to rescue him when she was set upon and handled rather roughly. Constable Kelly arrested the barkeeper this morning. The case is set for hearing in 'Squire Graney's court this evening.

William Judge Again.

William Judge, whose name was prominently mentioned in connection with the Mrs. Madden case is locked up in Central Station Calaboose. He was arrested yesterday at Seventh and Spruce, and is charged with voting under the name of John Dunn and claiming to live at No. 709 Spruce street. The voter was taken to the alleged residence but the landlord failed to identify him and he was taken to Four Courts, where he was identified as William Judge and locked up.

The New Assay Office.

H. C. Burchard, director of the United States Mints, is in the city on business connected with the establishment of the Assay Office provided for by act of Congress. An appropriation was made of $10,000, and the provides that the office shall be located in the present Post Office building. Mr. Burchard has been in consultation with Postmaster Hays upon the subject and has presented his views. Six rooms are wanted and the difficulty is how to furnisy them with reference to the present crowded condition of the building. Two of these rooms must be taken from the space now occupied by the postal service, and Postmaster Hays believes that such a surrender will seriously interfere with the work of his department already much pressed for space. The new Custom-house, it is supposed, will not be ready for occupancy for two years. In the meantime the postal business is so rapidly increasing as to make the present accommodations quite insufficient.

ELECTION BETS.

Who Won and Who Lost on Tuesday's Results.

A Good Deal of Unhappiness Averted by Hedging.

A larger amount of money was staked on this municipal election than any previous one, but the individual winnings were not proportionate. Nine out of every ten who had anything staked began to hedge early on Tuesday, and the result was a general stand-off. The comparatively few who went in early with the belief that the Republicans would carry everything are the fortunate ones; so, too, those who began to back Ewing when the odds were against him, and stuck to their first choice right along. The others were left. As a class the gamblers all along Sixth street put up their money on Ewing, paying no attention to the rest of the ticket. With the same unanimity that they bet on him they worked for him. The saloon keepers backed McHose strongly. There was a very general understanding among them that they would give him all the support they could and they did not think it possible that he could be beaten. It is said that some of the Overstolz managers met at midnight before election day and feeling desperate resolved to sacrifice everything for the head of the ticket. The word went out Monday morning to this effect, but the managers only discovered that they were twelve hours behind McHose's friends, who had begun their trading Monday evening. All day long it was a cut throat game between the friends of each, but the McHose men had the start and the best of it.

At Roche's pool-room $25,000 changed hands on the result, but it does not represent winnings. The proprietor himself is credited with having backed Overstolz heavily on Saturday and then hedged on Ewing.

Grif. Prather dropped $1,000 in a single bet at the Turf Exchange, backing Overstolz straight against Ewing, giving odds on the latter at the rate of $1,000 to $800.

William M. Spink picked up what proved to be two very soft snaps. An offer of $100 to $5 that at least one man on the Democratic ticket would be elected he took twice.

James C. Broadwell bet straight on the Republican favorites getting odds, and pocketed considerable money by a comparatively light investment.

John R. Slevin while watching the progress of the betting at the pool room Monday night, handed Gus Priest a bill, and told him to buy the combination, Ewing, McHose and Thomas. Slevin argued that if he got through he could well afford to lose. If he didn't Priest could realize on his friend's defeat. The contingency of McAose's losing wasn't considered.

Col. J. C. Normile, usually a very safe better, made a miss of it this time, and only partially hedged out. He couldn't bring himself to believe the whole ticket would be beaten. Major Scanlan, who went heavy on his friend Normile's judgment, was another sufferer.

Henry Erb picked up considerable money on Ewing and Thomas.

William C. Steigers hit it luckily, taking up the odds offered by Overstolz' partisans to the extent of several hundred dollars.

Mike Heller confined himself to the head of the ticket, winning every bet he made.

Andy Haley, the Democratic candidate for Inspector of Weights and Measures, went around all day Monday with a pocketful of money to back himself, but Rudolph's supporters were not sanguine enough to accommodate him, and Haley has the satisfaction of feeling the roll still in his fingers.

Ned Sturgeon drew out $400 on his faith on Republican success.

George Bain is a couple of hundred ahead but would have been better off if he hadn't over-estimated Overstolz's strength.

Aleck Garesche's shrewdness put him ahead on the day's speculation.

Jim Hardy's slop contract profits were swept away by the Overstolz defeat.

W. W. Judy swelled his bank account hundreds of dollars, being one of the few to take in every bet he made.

John G. Priest considers himself ahead. He has backed the Democratic ticket election after election, and is generally known as a phenomenal loser. This time he made no bets, and it was money in his pockets that he didn't.

Dr. Frazer caught the fever slightly. About 4 o'clock Tuesday he became possessed of a wild desire to wager three to one on McHose's success. In about ten minutes he had put up $150 against $50 with five different persons. Later in the afternoon, he made wilder attempts to hedge, but without success. He says he is glad that no more of his bets were taken as he was anxious to wager a larger sum.

REMEMBER THE SALE OF THE BRENNER COLLECTION TO-NIGHT.

CITY PERSONALS.

Maj. Wm. S. Reed, of the firm of D. G. Tutt & Co., returned yesterday from a five months' sojourn in New Orleans.

Capt. Tom Johnson, representing the Donk Bros'. coal yard at Chester, Ill., is in the city and goes home to-night.

Mr. Henry L. Whitman, accompanied by his wife and daughter, Miss Helen, left this morning for Seneca Falls, N. Y. The latter will remain East until September, Mr. Whitman returning next week to superintend the rebuilding of his factory on Eighth and Clark avenue.

Legal Notes.

Letters of administration were granted to-day to Peter J. Van Hardenberg, administrator of Henry Ostendorf.

The docket set in Judge Lindley's Court for the following days in April has been set forward: April 11th, 12th and 13th to May 9th, 10th and 11th, respectively.

LORD ASHLEY.

That Ornament of the Britith Aristocracy Still in St. Louis.

Lord Ashley is still among us. Despite his failure as a lecturer he still wears exceedingly good clothes and conducts himself with air fine of the beau monde. He is acquiring experience in St. Louis and seems to be displaying much more mental vigor than he showed at first.

"Oh, it was a blasted fizzle, you know," said he, referring to the lecture, "but what more could you expect? You see, I am not a lecturer, and I thought I could pluck the flower safely out of the nettle—that aint exactly what I mean, you understand—I thought I could turn all this blasted notoriety you have given me to some practical purpose in getting away from here, you know."

"Why didn't you lecture on something else."

"I don't know anything about anything else, you know, and besides I thought, with the costume and the subject and the day, I could get an audience together. I'm convinced there ain't very much religion in this city, or it would have showed up better. As far as I can see, the only thing that seems to catch on here is legs, and I haven't got any legs; at any rate my legs won't do not for a public show."

"What shall you do?"

"Well I haven't the vaguest idea. I did think of giving a lecture on the English aristocracy, but I don't suppose that these people know what an aristocracy is, most of them. No, I guess the only thing left for me to do is to peddle hair oil or some such blarsted stuff in a condemned basket, round from door to door. In fact, I almost swear when I think about it."

"Why don't you interview the Young Men's Christian Association."

"What do they do?"

"Why they extend the right hand of fellowship to a man and all that sort of thing, if he is in need and is deserving and that."

"What is their address?" Lord Ashley penciled the direction down in a little memorandum book and continued, "I'm still looking for that man Kirk. I suppose I'll fetch up with him some day, but he has distributed those jewels so that I will never see them again."

"You received a pretty rough deal in St. Louis. I suppose you will remember our town kindly?"

"Won't I. I never had such a time in my life. If it wasn't for the loss of my gems I wouldn't mind it though. I've had a good time outside of that. Ta-ta."

New Buildings.

Mr. W. Laugberg is to have a one story one room kitchen to cost $150, on Fourteenth, between Wash and Carr streets.

B. Barnte has contracted for the erection of an ice-house, to cost $3,300, on the southwest corner of Victor street and the Levee.

Mr. B. Roth is to have a one story three-room blacksmith shop, to cost $1,500, on the northeast corner of Market and Eighteenth streets.

Mr. F. W. L. Meire will have a two-story 6-room dwelling, to cost $1,800, on Chouteau avenue, between Jefferson avenue and Josephine street.

Mr. F. Prange has contracted for the erection of a two-story six-room dwelling, to cost $1,800, on Warren street, between Fifteenth and Sixteenth streets.

Mr. F. Lamwersick has contracted for the erection of a two-story two-room cooper shop, to cost $800, on Montgomery street, between Fourteenth and Fifteenth.

The Recorder of Voters.

Not a Democrat can be found now to express dissatisfaction with the action of the Legislature in taking the appointment of the Recorder of Voters from the Mayor and conferring it upon the Governor. It is all that remains about the City Hall to console the Democracy. The office will be filled by Gov. Crittenden in a few days, and the choice seems to be between Mr. Charles G. Gonter, the present incumbent, and Mr. C. L. Hoblitzelle, who has the Knapp influence behind him.

The Timmons Children.

A motion has been filed to suppress the depositions recently taken at Paducah, Ky., in the habeas corpus proceeding involving the custody of little Maggie Timmons, the child adopted by Mrs. Moore, of 119 South Fifth street. The testimony reflects upon the character of the child's mother, who instituted these proceedings. The little boy still remains at the St. Joseph Asylum on Clark avenue, awaiting the result.

The Official Count.

Register Walsh and his assistants are progressing steadily with the tally sheets on the late election. The transcript from the poll books was completed to the Twentieth Ward at noon to-day. Whether the footings will be made to-night is a matter of doubt. If not they will be the first thing in the morning, and before to-morrow night probably the certificates of election will be made out.

The Peyton Case.

The case of John Peyton, alias Cockadoodle John, for the killing of Charles Reed, is progressing in the Criminal Court this afternoon. The defendant's attorney, Mr. C. O. Bishop, has set up a case of self defense.

'CHANGE GOSSIP.

There was a rumor on 'Change to-day that Eastern rail freights were being "cut," and this rumor followed up proved to be so. Most all the freight agents said rates were unsteady, though they all disclaimed any personal knowledge of a "cut." It was learned that certain fast freight lines running over a certain road leading out from this city were giving a rate 5c per 100 pounds a 10c per barrel on flour less than the regular and lately reduced tariff. It is also asserted that foreign shipments of cotton are and have been taken at less than schedule rates for some time past.

A COMMITTEE has been appointed to secure new headquarters for the Secretary of the Grand Lodge of Missouri Masons. The apartments now occupied at Seventh and Market streets are entirely too small.

As car No. 14 of the Fifth street line was bound south at noon to-day, the team of mules attached to car No. 34, coming north, became frightened and turned toward the pavement at the same time car No. 14 was passing, and the tongue pole of No 34 car was run through the front part of it, breaking it badly.

The Markets.

MORNING BOARD.

Flour—Steady and firm with a fair business. We quote: Fancy $5 35@5 75; choice $5 20@5 30; family $4 85@5 00; xxx $4 50@4 70; xx $3 90@4 05; x $3 50@3 70; superfine $3 15@3 30; fine $2 75@2 95; extra fancy and patents held higher.

Wheat—Higher for grades, for which there was a good demand and ready sale. Nearly all the No. 2 red taken for shipment at $1 08, while other parties (mainly millers) paid $1 08⅛; millers bought No. 3 red at $1 02⅞@1 03; and they took No. 4 in C. at 98, regular do selling for shipment at 96½; shippers also purchased No. 2 Mediterranean at $1 07 for No. 3 do, $1 01½ bid; No. 1 red salable at $1 08⅜, but none to be had. Old No. 2 red sold early at $1 08⅛ and had $1 08¼ bid later. Futures opened strong at an advance, but declined almost steadily later, closing ⅛@5-16 lower, except April which was salable at $1 08@¼ advance; May sold at $1 08⅜ to $1 08@⅛, closing at $1 08⅛; June at $1 08⅞@1 08⅜; July at $1 05⅛@1 05; August at $1 03⅛@1 03; year at $1 02⅜ to $1 01¾@⅞.

Corn—Strong and generally better in price for cash. No. 2 mixed was steady, selling to order buyers at 42c St. L. E., etc., while speculators took regular at 41⅞c; No. 2 white-mixed under a good order demand advanced to 42¾@42⅞c for regular and 43@43½c in certain houses where it was specially wanted; rejected do also higher at 41¾c and supply small; rejected quick sale in order and shipping account at an advance—40@¼c in St. Louis, 40¼@½c in Advance, 41c in E.; no grade sold at 36c. Futures firm, but dull and trading light. May sold at 42@⅛c to 41⅞c; June at 42c; August at 43c; bids of 41⅞@42c for April, 42¼c for July, 43⅛@⅜c for September. April No. 2 white-mixed sold at 42⅞c to 43c; bids of 43⅛c May, 43⅞c June, 44c July.

Oats.—Firm for cash, with grades scarce, but the demand fell away to small proportions and buyers showed none of the eagerness in purchasing that has been so marked lately. Grade No. 2 sold in a small way at 37½ in St. Louis and 37 was bid for A. receipts, but their grades were entirely neglected. Futures—June steady at 35½ and July advanced to 32⅞@33; April saleable at 35½, at which May was held, with 35⅜@½ bid.

Rye scarce as hen's teeth. No grades offering and high bids of $1 10 for No. 2 and $1 05 for rejected from an order buyer failed to get any.

Barley—Stiff, as the supply was small, but demand limited. We quote: Rejected 55@65; No. 2 85@90; choice 95@$1; fancy $1 05@$1 10; Canada $1 15@$1 30.

Hay—Firm, but no business to speak of owing to the rain. Receipts somewhat larger, but the good demand continues. We quote: Prairie $11@14; mixed $17@18; prime timothy $19@19 50; choice $10 50@21; fancy $21 50@22.

Millfeed—Dull. Sacked bran sold on Narrow Gauge track at 60, and at 65c at mill.

Provisions Higher and firm. A small business was transacted, however. Mess pork sold at $15 90 cash and $15 75@15 85 in settlement of April; $15 80 bid regular for latter, $15 90 for May; $15 97½ June. No prime steam lard to speak of out of refiners' hands; fully worth 10½. Except an early sale of a round lot clear ribs at Hannibal at $7 60, freight, etc., little was done in loose dry salt meats, which was quotable at 4.90 for shoulders; 7¾ for clear ribs, 8c for short clear and latter sold boxed at $8.20. Packed bacon clear ribs brought $8.60; short clear $8.80@8 80⅛; shoulders held at $5.60. Hams 9¼@10; plain s. c. 10@11 for canvased do; 11¼@145 for small size fancy specially ordered. Tallow ⅜@½, according to quality. Breakfast bacon 10½@11¼c. Grease, 4@4½ for brown, 5¼@⅝c for yellow, 6¼@7c for white, 8@8½ for grease lard. Beef—Extra mess $12 per brl.; prime mess $9 50 per brl.; family $7 per half-brl.; dried 12½@13¼c per ℔. Fresh smoked tongues $4 50@5 per doz. Salt $1 30@1 35 per brl. for lake, and $1 20 for Ohio River; $1 25 per sack for G. A.

Highwines—Unchanged. Sales 163 bbls at $1 06. Cincinnati lower $1 04; Chicago $1 08; Peoria $1 06.

Lead—Quiet. Soft Missouri selling in a small way at $4 37½.

Afternoon Call.

Wheat better; cash $1 08 bid; April $1 07⅞ bid; May $1 08⅜ bid; June $1 08⅜; July $1 05; August $1 02¾ bid; year $1 02.

Corn—Stronger. Cash 42 bid; April 42⅛; May 42; June 42; July 42¼ bid; August 43⅛@43¼@¼ September 43⅝@¾ bid; No. 2 white mixed — bid cash; April 42⅞ bid; May 43⅞c bid; June 43⅞c bid.

COMMISSIONER'S SALE OF REAL ESTATE.

WHEREAS, the Circuit Court, city of St. Louis, State of Missouri, at the February term thereof, in the year 1881, February 28, 1881, in the matter of partition between Louis H. Lee, Elmira Benoist and her husband, Eugene H. Benoist, Charles H. Lee, Wm. H. Lee and John Perry Lee, by his guardian, Theophile Papin, plaintiffs, against Roger S. Lee, defendant, made an order appointing the undersigned special commissioner to sell the real estate in said order mentioned, and which is hereinafter particularly described. Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that the undersigned commissioner, acting under and by virtue of said order, will proceed to sell the real estate in said order mentioned, and which is hereinafter particularly described, at the time and place hereinafter stated, to the highest bidder, on the terms of one-third of the purchase money to be paid in cash at the time of sale and the balance in two equal installments, in one and two years from the day of sale, with interest at the rate of six per cent per annum, to be secured by notes of the purchasers with deeds of trust on the property purchased. The sale will take place at the east front door of the Court-house, in the city of St. Louis, State of Missouri, on between the hours of ten o'clock a. m. and four o'clock p. m. of said day, and the property to be sold is particularly described as follows, to-wit: Situated in the city of St. Louis and State of Missouri, and in block number thirteen hundred and eighty-three (1383) of said city, to-wit: Lots numbered nineteen (19), twenty (20), twenty-one (21), twenty-two (22) and twenty-three (23) of said block, said lots having an aggregate front of one hundred and fifteen feet four inches, more or less, on Adele street, and an aggregate width on the rear or alley end of one hundred and thirty-eight feet seven inches more or less.

TUESDAY, APRIL 12, 1881,

For further particulars, apply to the office of S. V. PAPIN & BRO., Real Estate Agents, 210 North Sixth street, St. Louis, Mo.

RETAIL DRUGGISTS, ATTENTION.

Public Administrator's Sale of a Drug-Store.

I WILL offer at private sale for a few days the old and well established retail drug store on the southeast corner of Third and Market streets in this city, belonging to the estate of the late Hugo Krebs, deceased.

This is one among the oldest and best stands for a retail drug store in the city of St. Louis, the store having been used for that purpose and no other for forty years, and several fortunes have been made there. This is a rare opportunity for any party desiring to enter into that line of business.

The above stock of drugs, together with the good will of the business, will be offered at private sale until the 11th day of April, 1881, and if not sold before that time, I will offer the entire stock at public auction

ON FRIDAY, THE 15TH DAY OF APRIL, 1881.

Sale to commence at 10 o'clock, a. m., on the premises. Terms cash.

For particulars call at my office.

Sheriff, City St. Louis, Mo.
St. Louis, Mo., March 16, 1881.

SHERIFF'S SALE.—By virtue and authority of a special execution issued from the office of the Clerk of the Circuit Court of the city of St. Louis, returnable to the April term, 1881, of said Court, and to me directed, in pursuance of a decree and order of sale entered in a cause wherein Ellen M. Sharkey, doing business as Ellen M. Farrell, and Dennis Sharkey, her husband, are plaintiffs, and Anne Wahrendorf Johnson, nee Blow, Richard M. Johnson, her husband, and John D. Johnson as trustee of Ann Wahrendorf Johnson, are defendants, adjudging and declaring a certain indebtedness in such decree and order of sale mentioned to be a lien and charge in favor of said plaintiffs and against the property of said defendants therein and herein hereinafter described, and ordering me to levy upon and sell the same to satisfy said debt interest and cost,

I have levied upon and seized all the right, title and interest of Annie Wahrendorf Johnson and John D. Johnson, her trustee, in and to the following described real estate situated in the City of St. Louis, Missouri, and charged with the lien therefor, and described in said execution and decree as follows, to-wit; and consisting of lot numbered forty of block 64, of Stoddard's addition to said city, and in block 1029 of said city, having a front of 25 feet on the southern line of Thomas street by a depth of 118 feet 3 inches, more or less, to an alley.

And I will, on

WEDNESDAY, THE 27TH DAY OF APRIL, 1881,

between the hours of nine o'clock in the forenoon and five o'clock in the afternoon of that day, at the east front door of the Court-house, in the city of St. Louis, State of Missouri, sell at public auction, for cash, to the highest bidder, all the right, title, interest, claim, estate and property of the above named Annie Wahrendorf Johnson and John D. Johnson, her said trustee, said defendants, of, in and to the above described property, charged with said lien herein, to satisfy said execution and costs.

IN the Circuit Court of the City of St. Louis.—In the matter of the petition of Hugo Reichenbach. Petition to perpetuate title to real estate. To all whom it may concern—Take notice, that on this 30th day of March, 1881, Hugo Reichenbach has filed in the office of the Clerk of the Circuit Court, within and for the city of St. Louis, State of Missouri, his petition duly verified by affidavit, setting forth that he is the owner in fee simple of the following described property, lying and being in the city of St. Louis, State of Missouri, to-wit: Three certain lots, pieces or parcels of ground in "White Place," a subdivision of part of United States surveys number fifteen hundred and sixty-two (1,562), twelve hundred and seventy (1,270) and fifteen hundred and fifty (1,550), a plat of which subdivision is of record in the office of the Recorder for the city of St. Louis (formerly county of St. Louis); said lots are numbered nine (9), ten (10) and eleven (11) in block number eight (8), fronting together one hundred and sixty-six feet (166) on the southern line of Julia avenue, and with that width running southwardly one hundred and twenty-eight feet and four inches to the northern line of lots six (6), seven (7) and eight (8) of the same block. That the petitioner claims title to said real estate under a trustee's deed recorded in book — page — of the records of the city of St. Louis; that the sale of the trustee was made under deed of trust from Julius Niese and wife, recorded in book 541, page 248; that said Niese claimed under and by virtue of a quit claim deed made by Charles O. Knoblauch and wife, recorded in book 602, page 321; that said Knoblauch claimed title under a certain quit claim deed purporting to be executed by Julius Niese under power of attorney by Ida and Hedwig Niese, which quit claim deed is recorded in book 605, page 337, but which power of attorney is not recorded; that said power of attorney was executed at Barley, January 12, 1875, by Ida Niese and Hedwig Niese, duly acknowledged before Franz Spiegelthal, the Royal Prussian notary, in the district of the Royal Court of Appeal of Magdeburg on January 22, 1875, which power of attorney recited that said Ida and Hedwig Niese had inherited "ab intestato" as heirs of Moritz Ludwig Niese, said property, and empowered "Mr. Julius Niese, of St. Louis, to sell, to execute the necessary deeds of conveyance, to give possession to the purchaser, to authorize the recording of it," said property: that said power of attorney is lost and is not recorded; and praying for a decree adjudging that the petitioner has a good and valid fee simple title to said real estate; and that a decree will be entered in said cause at the next term of said Court, to be begun and held at the city of St. Louis on the first Monday of June next, after due publication of this notice, and the title or interest to or in said land adjudged to said petitioner according to the prayer of his said petition.

Witness Charles F. Vogel, Clerk of our said Court, with the seal thereof hereto affixed, at office in the City of St. Louis, this 30th day of March, 1881.

FORWARD TO 1884!

Never Despair of the American Republic.

Prospectus of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

In the sixth triumph of Radicalism the POST-DISPATCH recognizes the most serious menace to republican institutions that the country has ever known. The Secessionists, under the leadership of Jeff Davis in 1860, sought only to divide the Republic, but the so-called Republican party of to-day, under the control of Conkling, Grant, Logan et al., threatens to destroy it. A great step has been taken in the direction of Centralization. The Republican party stands committed to the Money Power, to the vast Monopolies which foster class legislation and to every element opposed to the interests of the masses. Its compact organization, its late successful struggle in behalf of an unworthy standard-bearer, its sectionalism and its determination to treat as enemies of the country all advocates of a change of administration stamp it at once as a dangerous foe of Liberty. It is the party of Monarchical tendencies and its late triumph bodes no good to our institutions.

The POST-DISPATCH will maintain its position in the ranks of the Opposition. It proposes to battle more vigorously than ever against the party of Grantism and Centralization. This is no time to falter or grow weak. Cowards may skulk and some men who have suffered defeat year after year may lose faith and hope, but the duty of the true Patriot and lover of the Republic was never more clearly defined.

The POST-DISPATCH, while it acknowledges no fealty to men, will continue to preach sound, true Democratic doctrine and opposition to the pernicious tendencies of the Republican party. Its independence, its fearlessness and its honesty of purpose have been thoroughly well established. People who like a newspaper that has courage enough to point out the faults of its party associates and tell the truth though the heavens fall while battling for constitutional government will never be disappointed in the POST-DISPATCH.

The great Conservative party of the country cannot be annihilated by defeat. The existence of such an organization is necessary to the welfare of the Republic. Garfieldism in 1880 means Grantism and the overthrow of our existing system in 1884. The battle against the Empire and the Oligarchy of wealth must be commenced now. In the front rank of this contest the POST-DISPATCH will be found. It promises not to give over until the principles of self-government are vindicated. The POST-DISPATCH is now acknowledged to be

THE LEADING AFTERNOON JOURNAL OF THE WEST.

Its growth has been steady and legitimate. Its position is assured. Both its circulation and its revenue doubled during the last year. With increased strength its facilities will be increased, and the next year will witness great improvements in its methods and its aims. With the new year its news resources will be greatly strengthened. Its Telegraphic service will be enlarged, its corps of correspondents will be doubled, its mechanical capacity will be improved and every effort that experience can direct or money employ will be made to keep the daily POST-DISPATCH in the front rank of modern American [illegible] is known and read in nearly every State of the Union. It is a handsome eight-page paper, filled with matter carefully prepared, sorted and arranged for the people of the West and South. Its Correspondence, its Stories, its Miscellany, its Editorials, its Agricultural Essays, its News and its Market Reports are features commending it to all persons who are unable, by reason of location or condition, to subscribe for an expensive daily paper. It is a complete epitome of the world's doings from week to week, and we have no hesitancy in pronouncing it the best and cheapest newspaper in the land. It should have a place in every workshop and rural home in Missouri and the Southwest.

The Weekly Post-Dispatch

RATES OF SUBSCRIPTION.

The POST-DISPATCH will be delivered by carriers to any part of the city or sent by mail, postage prepaid, to subscribers in any part of the Union, on the following terms:

Daily, per week	20 cents.
Daily, per month	85 cents.
Daily three months	$2 50
Daily, six months	4 50
Daily, per year	9 00

Trustees' Sales.

TRUSTEE'S SALE.—Whereas, the Greenleaf Mining Company, by its deed of trust, dated June 24, 1875, and recorded in the office of the County Clerk and Recorder of Summit county, in the State of Colorado, in book No. 10 of deeds, page 337, did convey to Daniel G. Taylor and the undersigned, as trustees, and to the survivor of them, (the said Taylor and the undersigned) the following described real and personal property, rights and interests, all situate and being in the State of Colorado, viz.: The mining property, situate, lying and being in Spaulding Mining District, in said county of Summit, commencing at a stake located at the head of the pit and at the upper line of claim No. three on Klack Gulch, and running up said gulch the distance of 1,400 feet and in width 100 feet on each side from the center of said gulch.

Also the property commencing at a stake about 100 feet below the cabin formerly occupied by Thomas Klack, and running up a sag where said Klack formerly worked the distance of 500 feet and in width 100 feet on each side of said sag from the center thereof.

Also the property commencing at a point opposite the center of the bridge, crossing at Blue River, at Breckenridge, and running up said river 1,000 feet to a stake near the fall of the dam on said river at Breckenridge, and in width from hill to hill on each side of said Blue River.

Also the property following, being a ditch and the right of water thereto, known as Klack's ditch, and conveying water from Blue River to said Klack's Gulch. Also the property commencing at the upper line of Thomas Klack's pre-emption claim, situate and lying in Klack Gulch aforesaid, running up said gulch a distance of 1,600 feet and in width 100 feet on each side of said gulch from the center thereof; all the foregoing being in said mining district and Summit county. Also the following property in said Summit county, commencing at the upper line of pre-emption claim made by A. M. Greenleaf and others, dated July 25, 1870, and recorded in book L, page 207 records of said Summit county and on Klack's Gulch, in said county, and running up said gulch a distance of 3,000 feet at a width of 200 feet on each side of said gulch from the center thereof. Also the following described property, situate, lying and being in Union Patch, in Spaulding Mining District and said Summit county, being claims Nos. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6 and 7 on the first tier south of Discovery tier; also claims Nos. 2, 3, 4 and 5 on the second tier south of Discovery tier, also claims No. 3, 4, 5, 6 and 7 on the second tier north of Discovery tier, also the undivided one-half of claims Nos. 1, 2, 3, 4 and 5 on the fourth tier south of Discovery tier, also an undivided four-fifth interest of in and to the Cork-screw flume and ditch which carrries water from Stillson's Patch to Union Patch aforesaid. Also the whole of claim No. 6 on the fifth tier south of Discovery tier on the aforesaid Union Patch, the last described property being the same deeded by Mower and Hanks to A. M. Greenleaf by warranty deed filed for record October 1st, 1870, and recorded in book 8, page 344 of the records of said Summit county. Also all the right, title and interest of the said Greenleaf Mining Company in and to a certain lease, and the right thereunder made by one S. J. Mower and Melchior Hanks to A. M. Greenleaf, which said lease bears date the 1st day of October, 1870, and filed for record in the Recorder's office of said Summit county, in book 8, page 346 of the said record of deeds, which said lease is for the term of 99 years from the 1st day of October, A. D., 1870, and being the right to the use of the water from Blue River Gold Run and Union Trench of ditches after the water has been used as mentioned in said lease. Also the following described property situated on Union Patch aforesaid, to wit: Claims Nos. 3, 4 and 5 east on tier 3 west from Discovery tier, also a ditch and the right of water thereto, conveying water from little lake on Illinois Gulch to Cork-screw Gulch, this being the same property deeded to A. M. Greenleaf by deed and recorded in book 8, page 543, Summit County Records of Deeds. Also the following described property situate, lying and being in Spaulding District aforesaid, to-wit: Three side claims on the Blue River adjoining the northeast claims purchased by A. M. Greenleaf of Thomas Klack. Also claims numbered from 1 to 9 both inclusive, last on first tier north of Discovery tier; also claims 1, 2 and 3 last on second tier north of Discovery tier on Union Patch aforesaid. And also a ditch commencing at a point about one-fourth of a mile above the building formerly occupied by Whitman and Shollcross, and running down to the Klack claims aforesaid. Above property was deeded by M. and A. Silverthorn to A. M. Greenleaf et al. and recorded in book 8, page 152, of records of deeds of Summit county aforesaid. Also the following described property, to-wit: All the right, title and interest in and to a certain water right and the ground therefor, and to convey said water from Blue River to Klack Gulch aforesaid, which right was first located and pre-empted by A. M. Greenleaf, and the record thereof is recorded in book "L" page 206, of the records of Summit county aforesaid. Mad-Stones.

ANY person residing near St. Louis, having a "mad-stone," to address W. J. Clucas, box 44, Lebanon, Ill. State when beneficial, terms, etc.

The above advertisement, clipped from the wanted column of a morning paper, is an evidence of one of the remnants of barbarism still clinging to the American people. Mr. Clucas, whoever he is, is probably very much in earnest in wanting this mad-stone, and the only pity is that he should be wanting something which will do him little good when he gets it. There are at least two mad-stones in St. Louis county, for a POST-DISPATCH reporter has seen that many. One is owned by an old farmer named Silvey, living near Florissant, and the other is the property of Mr. Willard, of Sappington. Both of these stones are light and spongy, something like pumice stone, and are evidently of volcanic origin. When applied to a dog's bite they are supposed to suck out the virus and entirely guard against rabies; however this may be, it is at least certain that they will adhere to a wound with considerable tenacity. They are a light ashen gray in color and very light. It is to be hoped that the rabies will hold off until Mr. Clucas gets his mad-stone.

THE ROSY CROSS.

A Dark and Mysterious Brotherhood in St. Louis.

Announcement of a Great May Festival in This City.

Vague whispers of a mysterious brotherhood—the Brotherhood of the Rosy Cross—has occasionally been heard in the markets and upon the promenades. No one seems to know anything about the order, and yet curiosity is on tip-toe and all of the gossips are anxious for the smallest hint that will give a clew to the sacred mysteries of the Rosicrucians. Not a whit behind others in curiosity, a POST-DISPATCH reporter tackled the problem with the following results: The first essential of a good reporter is to have a theory upon which to work, and the next is to work upon the theory. Accordingly, following out his idea the scribe soon had a number of facts together which resulted yesterday afternoon in his walking down Fourth street with a red rose in his buttonhole. He was approached just north of Olive by a hack driver who touched his hat and said: "Is it a cross?" "It is a rose and a cross," answered the reporter as per card, and immediately afterwards he was in the hack driving rapidly northward. At Washington avenue another gentleman entered the carriage, pulled down the blinds, and, first begging pardon very courteously, proceeded to blindfold the reporter. How long, how far, or in what direction the carriage then went, the deponent knoweth not, but at last a stoppage was made, a great many steps climbed up, and at last a heavy door opened and clanged close behind the couple. The room was a warm one, and the foot sank deep into a soft carpet; a dozen steps brought the pair to another portal where a signal rap was knocked of a very complicated nature. A small trap door was opened and a voice demanded, "Who is it that disturbes our peace?"

"A brother of the Rosy Cross bringing with him an acolyte."

The portal was shut, and immediately the doorway opened, and the reporter and his guide passed in. What that solemn and gloomy initiation was can never be revealed; neither would it be proper to tell the awful and grewsome oaths which bound the reporter to secrecy—the dread maledictions which he invoked upon himself and upon others if he divulged the secrets of the brotherhood. Having pronounced word for word these formularies the bandage was suddenly stricken from his eyes and it was some minutes before he became accustomed to the blaze of light which filled the room, and which proceeded from at least two dozen braziers burning red fire. In a throne in the west sat the Patriarch, a man apparently of over four score years and ten. His long flowing beard was white as though it had been bleached by the snows of centuries, and rolled down in massy volume to the girdle which bound his robe of purple samite about his waist. His face looked older even than his decrepit but venerable body, and there was a reverent majesty about him which compelled respect mingled with awe. Circling him as a guard of honor were the Illuminati, as those are called who have penetrated the arcana of the order, who have had confided to them the three grand ultimate secrets, the Philosopher's Stone and the Elixir of Life, and the final mystery of Power. There were ten of these persons, each of them venerable, each of them panoplied with a solemn dignity, and the balance of the lodge-room was filled with a party of some thirty gentlemen, all in evening dress, with a red rose and a golden cross upon their breasts. The Illuminati were clothed in long flowing robes of creamy white silk, unadorned except with the cross and rose.

The Patriarch arose and a hush fell upon the assembly; cowled figures stole forward and dropped essences into the braziers which flared bluely for several seconds and then went out, leaving no light in the room but the beams of the solemn moon which fell directly upon the aged face. "Bring the acolyte forward," said he in a low and strangely musical voice. The reporter was led before him to a prie-dieu upon which he was motioned to kneel. He did so and the Patriarch began:

"Full six hundred years have I trod this earth, Oh Youth, six hundred years of sorrow, for immortality without youth is a curse and not a benison, and none of our secrets can call back the down upon the peach, the flush of youth into the palsied cheek of age. For these six centuries I have lived for men, my brothers, and I have found this ancient order the great engine for good. The Brotherhood of the Rosy Cross is the oldest fraternity upon this earth. You are about entering a society older than the Aryan mother-stock from which you spring. Back in the dim vista of the ages when the meanderthal man was living with the cave bear and the mammoth in the great central plain of Europe, the first ray of illumination had already been seen in far Cathay. We have held secrets sacred all that time, the Life-Lotion, the Universal Resolvent and a third more potent than both. Its very nature must not be hinted but to those who voluntarily assume the dread burden of immortality. Are you prepared to go with us—to learn and to dare—to cast off all human ties and human hopes and join the brotherhood of the Rosy Cross?"

"I am."

"Know then that it is possible for you to do much good or much harm by the knowledge of our secrets. We cannot trust where we have not tried. Will you abide the ordeal?"

"I will."

"Know, then, that we long ago threw off those shackles which fetter the human soul. We are free because we look below for help and not above. Dare you stand face to face with the Demon—with the Evil Principle—with Satan?"

"I dare."

"Brothers, mark out the pentagon."

With some phosphorescent material a pentagon was rapidly traced upon the floor, and the Rosicrucians, elect and neophytes, gathered around it, awaiting, evidently with some perturbation, the signal of the master. Each at last fell upon his knees, and swaying their bodies back and forward, the following awful prayer was intoned with broken sobs and the quick, hard breath of strong men laboring under deadly fear:

"Oh, father of every evil, come to us—stand in the midst of thy children who adore thee."

"Come to us thou who twinest thy fingers in the dank hair of drowning women. Come, father and lord, to these thy children."

"Come to us, up from the dismal abysses of thy lurid home with hate in thy heart, divine despair within thine eyes and ruin for us and thee upon thy lips."

"Come to us, oh! father of misery, sodden with crime and woe, drunk with the tears of orphans, laden with the wan-hope of the world—come, father, to these, thy children."

"Come to us thou who sittest in the dark watches of the night by the lone bedside of the suicide; come to us for we are thine."

"Come to us and read our hearts. Come and fill us full of wild despair. Come thou Evil Incarnate, thou that reekest with the blood of murdered men, thou who art cruelty itself. Come, Fiend, thy slaves implore."

"See, we grovel before thee. Are we not yours? Come then——"

The wild sobbing chant ceased suddenly as weirdly as it began, and one felt rather than saw that there was Something in the room, a Something that chilled the very marrow of one's bones with cold.

It was standing within the blue flaming pentagon, and what a figure it was! Only a divinely beautiful youth, in evening dress, a white flower as a boutonniere, the hands with the fingers interlaced hanging idly before him, but the face while it was divinely beautiful was the face of the Demon. Out of the steel blue eyes Satan himself looked forth, despair, utter, weary hopelessness were written there, bound in, with a tigerish cruelty that would rend and tear the very heartstrings. The mouth curved in a haughty sneer, was a rosebud in shape but in expression a volume. Wild blasphemy was just behind those half-smiling lips ready to leap forth and sear the ears of those that heard it. Every feature was lovely and devilish; the face set in a form of floating blonde hair was the face of a God—of a lost God trying to wreck the universe. It was false, it was wicked: it was everything but weak or ugly. The eyes soon bound up the observer in themselves; they were lambent and full of meaning, and they poured into one's being a flood of misery, of despair and of rebellion, that broke down every dam of belief or principle and sunk into the lowest levels of one's nature until wild defiance of the Eternal One became an ecstacy of joy. Just how far this transfusion of evil would have gone can not be said, for, as the scribe was fiercely delighting with these paroxysms of rebellions challenge, and was just about giving way to an almost irresistible longing to go forward and take the Demon's hand, some one fainted and fell heavily on the floor, the lights sprang up and the pentagon was empty. It was at least a quarter of an hour before the proceedings were resumed; everyone was languid and head-achy; it seemed that each had lost something; that each had given of their life to form the awesome spectre which had been in their midst, and the drain upon the vitality of each had been a fearful one.

"An hundred times," said the Patriarch, "have I stood face to face with the evil one, but never have I felt him so closely as now—never have I looked into his essence as now. This invocation is as old as Zoroaster. Ahriman is in every heart, and thus can you make him stand out bodily before you, I see, oh Youth, that you are ready for the really occult secrets of the order, for this vision tonight is the merest child's play to what we can do."

"If I may ask a question, dread Patriarch, tell me something of the order."

"This is the mother of all the secret societies. They find in us their bourne—their goal. We have gone under many names. We have been known as the Eleusinian Mysteries in classic days. In the dim night of time our records were chiselled upon the obelisks and in the pyramids. These mushroom Masons claim the obelisk. All of their mysteries are but leaves torn from our full volume, but sands from the seashore of our knowledge, but drops in our ocean of occult love. To me the future and the past are one. It has been ordained that America is the Empire of the future, and America will focus at St. Louis. The finger of Destiny points to this city as the metropolis of the new world, and here the order of the Rosy Cross must be founded anew, as it is as new as it is old and must keep abreast of the ages. Here we begin our new career; there is but one other chapter after this is closed and that finishes the volume—Australia. We are known to possess the Elixir of Life and hence the May time is our festival season. With the incoming spring we have decided to show our strength to the people of the Mississippi Valley by a May festival. Keep silent as to what you have seen and heard this night, but tell this to the peoples, that the Brotherhood of the Rosy Cross mean well to all mankind but especially to St. Louis. Tell them that many will be asked to revel with us upon our festal night, that we will shower gold upon them and that all will be asked to drink of the wonderful Elixir of Life."

What the Patriarch further said must not be told, but this much can be said, never will the good old town be so dazzled as upon the festive night in May when the Rosicrucians will throw off their years and rival it with the beauty and youth of the city. Never will the hall of the Merchants' Exchange re-echo to a gayer throng than will gather there upon the night of the May Festival.

Masonic Entertainment.

Keystone Lodge No. 243, A. F. and A. M., gave a handsome entertainment to their friends last evening at Masonic Hall in commemoration of their sixteenth anniversary. The attendance was large and select. A musical and literary entertainment filled the first part of the evening, among the talent engaged being Mrs. Girard, Miss Theresa Balmer, Miss Jordan, Messrs. E. A. Becker, Geo. H. Yost, Julius Sparteder, O. O. Girard, Prof. D. Clinton Price. An able address on Masonry was given by John D. Vincil. Following the entertainment came an elegant and well-served supper, after which came dancing to the strains of Postlewaite's orchestra, and which was kept up the balance of the evening. The whole affair was entirely complimentary, and the gentlemen having it in charge are entitled to great credit for its success.

The City Directory.

Gould's City Directory for 1881 is out in its usual attractive shape, and with more than its usual thoroughness and comprehensiveness. There are 131,717 names in the book, which with a population of only 350,915 is certainly a good showing for the manner in which the Directory has been collected and formulated. It is a formidable volume of 1,480 pages, clearly printed with good type on fine paper. The typography is excellent, the proof remarkably clear, and every possible effort has been made in the direction of accuracy. One of the evidences of Mr. Gould's enterprise is the printing, in this volume which was issued yesterday of one appendix containing the complete list of the municipal officers and Assembly elected only the day before. Mr. Gould has made a directory which surpasses even his excellent ones of former years, and one which deserves the support of all citizens.

His Maiden Speech.

A lot of Republican office-seekers and holders called at the residence of Mayor-elect Ewing, on Miami street, last night with a band of music. After disturbing the neighborhood for some time, Mr. Ewing came to the front and was delivered of the following speech:

"Fellow-citizens: In accepting your congratulations I appreciate with sincere gratitude the great honor bestowed upon me by your suffrages and support, and in accepting the high token of confidence and esteem, as indicated by your ballots, that you have reposed in me, I feel that I should not allow any personal gratification, which under ordinary circumstances and surroundings might naturally actuate me, to influence or cause me to make any indiscreet promises. In the discharge of my official duties I shall, under all circumstances, endeavor in the fullest sense to be the executive of the citizens of St. Louis, I will aim to bring no discredit to my position, and I trust when my four years of service are completed I shall retain the confidence and esteem of the public. Gentlemen, an official is to be judged by what he does, and I propose that my acts shall speak for me. I thank you and bid you a hearty welcome."

It must be said in all candor that this is a poor speech. It was by no means equal to the occasion. Mr. Ewing should hasten to make a contract with Mr. MacAdam, the intellectual gentleman who has furnished Mr. Overstolz with off-hand speeches and State papers for several years.

LADIES coming to the city shopping will please remember to call at C. Conrad & Co.'s ladies' department, No. 419 North Sixth street, for refreshments such as the celebrated Budweiser beer, fine wines and delicacies.

THE DANGER LINE.

Indications All Pointing to Still Higher Water.

The Rainy Weather Quite General in the Mississippi Valley.

What Stage of Water St. Louis can Stand Without Apprehension.

The river promises to supplant politics as the subject of general interest. The storm prevailing at St. Louis to-day is not a local one. At 6 o'clock this morning rain was falling at Omaha, Springfield, Ill., Shreveport, Louisiana, and Ft. Gibson in the Indian Territory. The barometer is falling pretty much all over the Mississippi Valley, indicating a continuance of the storm at the places mentioned for twenty-four hours at least, and its spread to other points.

While the rain had not set in at 6 o'clock this morning the following places reported cloudy weather: Cairo, Chicago, Davenport, La Crosse, Leavenworth, Louisville, Memphis, Vicksburg and Shreveport. The chances are that the storm will extend to all these points before there is a change. The weather is reported threatening at Port Eads and at Des Moines.

The conditions could hardly be more threatening. There is high water in the Mississippi and all its tributaries. The almost unprecedented snow-fall for the long winter in the Northwest lies in great part unmelted, awaiting such days as this to dissolve and swell every little creek over its banks. If the storm extends and continues, as the meteorological conditions promise, there will be reports of serious damages all along the rivers by Monday.

The waters are now only a little below what is known as "the danger line," where trouble begins. At Keokuk, for example, the mark beyond which the river cannot rise is 14 feet 6 inches above low water. The reading of the gauge last night showed the stage to be 14 feet and 1 inch. Half a foot more will put the Government dams and rapids improvements in jeopardy, to say nothing of damage to individual property.

At Herman, on the Missouri, the danger line is drawn at 16 feet on the gauge. The Reading last night was 12 feet 8 inches.

At Cairo the danger line is reached at 40 feet. The stage of the water last night was 35 feet 8 inches.

Reports to-day from all points along the Missouri and Upper Mississippi show the rivers rising.

Here at St. Louis the gauge showed 24 feet 2 inches last night. Before noon to-day the guage read 24 feet 6 inches. Thirty feet marks the danger line for St. Louis, but considerable damage will be incurred at points on both sides of the river before that point is reached. Should the river swell six feet above the present stage there will be trouble all along the St. Louis front. The Water Works might escape inundation by reason of the dyke thrown up on three sides of the site a few years ago. But just below the engine houses and for a mile southward there is a section of low land pretty well covered with dwellings of the cheaper class, sawmills, lumber yards and manufactories, which would be submerged and the occupants forced to move away temporarily. Thousands of cellars and miles of sewers would be full of water. The river reached twenty-five feet last week and looked dangerously near to the people of that locality. So grave was the situation that many families began to make calculations for moving, and the lumbermen speculated on what height of dyke would protect their property from being swept away.

A rise to over 30 feet will damage very greatly the Knapp-Stout Lumber Company, the Eau Claire Lumber Company, the Meyer Lumber Company, the Hymers Lumber Company, the Mississippi Glass Works, the Stifel Brewery Company, the Laclede Rolling mill, Along the levee below the St. Louis Elevator such water as that will bring the current up over the sidewalks in many places. It was there in 1840 and many buildings still stand there the foundations of which withstood that rushing flood. South of Chouteau avenue, however, there has been a great deal of building on land which was under water in previous notable freshets, and they cannot escape a thirty feet stage. From Elevator B to the Arsenal there is scarcely a block on the river front that can escape uninjured, while in places the rise will bring the water in from the bank for hundreds of feet. In Carondelet nearly all the iron furnaces and manufacturing interests are within the danger line.

With the situation so serious on this side the prospect for East St. Louis and the adjacent country over the river can be imagined. Thirty feet means the submersion of many streets and railroad tracks. It would transform the American Bottom in many places into lakes, and if continued some days would inflict damages hardly calculable.

Does the Sun Move?

The Rev. C. A. Johnson well known as one of the foremost divines in the colored church, is in St. Louis, and will lecture at the Christy Avenue Baptist Church this evening on his old and well-known theme, "Does the Sun Move? or the Science of the Heavenly Bodies and the Revolutionary Powers of the Earth and Sun." Mr. Johnson will present the orthodox side of this question with much vigor and enthusiasm, and will prove to the perfect satisfaction of his audience that the sun does move, the heresy which has found general acceptance to the contrary notwithstanding. Mr. Johnson will illustrate his lecture with a great many ingenius experiments all tending to bulwark his theory. He will fill a glass full of water so full that another drop cannot be added and leave it in plain view of the people all through the lecture; the slightest movement would spill the liquid, but it it does not spill. Mr. Johnson has made a national reputation as an expounder of this doctrine, and no doubt he will be as successful with his colored brethren here as he has been in other cities. It will be a great feather in the cap of African civilization if that race succeeds in upsetting the Copernican theory and the law of gravitation, two errors which have enthralled the Caucasian for centuries.

THE PILGRIM CHIMES.

Progress of the Case—Examination of Dr. Johnson.

The hearing of the Pilgrim Chimes case by Judge Lindley, in Circuit Court No. 4 attracts considerable attention. The trial is conducted without a jury, and the testimony which is voluminous will occupy the whole of the week.

The plaintiffs, Dr. Leete and Mr. Hulse, are introducing testimony with the view of establishing the ground of their complaint that the chimes operate as a nuisance to the neighborhood, and that health is seriously affected by the vibration in the immediate vicinity of Pilgrim Church. Mr. Hulse, Jr., the domestics in the Hulse household and the family physician have been called upon the stand to testify touching the effect of the bells upon persons living next door to the church.

Dr. J. B. Johnson testified this morning that he resided on Lucas Place; had practiced medicine for forty years; frequently visited Mr. Hulse's house near Pilgrim Church, on Washington avenue. The ringing of the chimes when the windows were open interrupted conversation in Mr. Hulse's house. Witness could not say what the effect of the chimes would be upon sleep. It depended upon the nervous sensibility of the person sleeping. One man could sleep during a thunder-storm, while another could not. A person of nervous temperament, worn out with the labors of the day, might be disturbed by the bells, although he might not sleep if there were no bells there. Any one in good health would probably not be disturbed by the bells. It was simply a question of the nervous temperament. To a person whose nerves were excited by noises of any character the effect upon health would be injurious. One Sunday morning the doctor remembered distinctly that he followed the tune and suspended conversation until the chimes had finished. It would have been possible to converse during the ringing, but it would have been attended with inconvenience.

Dr. Johnson was the family physician of Mr. Hulse, and he visited professionally several families residing in the vicinity of Pilgrim Church. Expressing the opinion of a medical expert, Dr. Johnson would say that Mr. Hulse possessed a nervous temperament, affected by dyspepsia. Any sound disturbed and annoyed a nervous dyspeptic. The examination of witnesses for the defense will include the testimony of all the ladies in Stoddard addition, who are to be asked whether the effect of the chimes is pleasurable or injurious. The case for plaintiffs, conducted by Ed. T. Allen and H. Denison, will probably close to-morrow. Messrs. Fisher, Rowell and Horner, who represent the church, have summoned their witnesses for to-morrow and Saturday.

Coroner's Inquest.

Coroner Frank to-day held an inquest on the body of George Ingram, the negro who was fatally cut in a saloon fight at No. 1022 North Seventh street. The deceased's woman was examined and testified that when she entered the saloon Rose and Emerson began pulling her around, and to this Ingram objected. The fight commenced here and Ingram run behind the bar and seizing the revolver fired twice, one ball pierced Emerson's hand and the other struck Rose over the eye.

Reilly Admitted to Bail.

This morning Judge Laughlin heard argument on the motion to admit Michael J. Reilly, who was indicted by the Grand Jury, to bail. After hearing the arguments Reilly was admitted to bail in the sum of $5,000 which he furnished.

HALE'S HONEY OF

"Nothing without Labour."

HOREHOUND & TAR

☞ Invariably Cures Coughs, Colds, Hoarseness, Sore Throats, Asthma, Croup, and all Affections of the Breathing Organs.

Its soothing influence upon the irritated air passages is due to the fact that its ingredients are the most efficacious pulmonics known, the basis of the article being the honey of the horehound plant, chemically united with the Abies Balsamea, or Balm of Gilead. There are besides five other botanic elements which give additional efficacy.

Those who have used it say that Hale's Honey of Horehound and Tar is wonderfully remedial in all cases where the organs of respiration are affected, and that its action is unusually rapid. It contains nothing that can disorder the stomach; it has an extremely agreeable flavor, and is sold at a figure which enables those of the most limited means to avail themselves of its virtues.

Children derive great benefit from its soothing properties when suffering with Croup and Whooping Cough.

Prices—50c. and $1 per bottle; largest, cheapest.
